CARMEL CITY Council has given unanimous approval to the first step in wide-ranging structural renewal at venerable Sunset Center. City Cultural Director Brian Donoghue and Carmel Cultural Commission now can invite architects to submit portfolios. Eventually the architect will be picked by a blue ribbon committee of considerable size. See the full story on page 25 in today's Arts & Leisure section.

Is the Lone Cypress logo worth $300 million?

JUST HOW much is a trademark worth, especially when it involves the prestigious Pebble Beach?

The value of the famous Lone Cypress trademark is at the heart of a controversy involving millions of dollars in tax revenues for the county and citizens of Monterey, and will no doubt become an important case in a growing national debate over the value of business properties.

The present owners, the Pebble Beach Co., and the prospective owners, the Lone Cypress Co., are locked in intense negotiations over details of the purchase. An important element in those negotiations is resolution of past due taxes by the current owners. The Pebble Beach Co., owned by Minoru Isutani of Japan, have protested the assessed value of $850 million by refusing to pay their total property tax bill. They argue the property was worth only $550 million when it sold 17 months ago. They contend that "intangibles," including the Lone Cypress logo and trademark, account for the remaining $300 million purchase price.

The restitution of the tax bill is "crucial" to the resolution of the current sale, according to Paul Leach, an investment banker who is a director of the Lone Cypress Co., which is financed by Japan's Sumitomo Bank.

A new controversey waiting

And once the current controversy is settled, there may be another waiting in the wings. With the property reselling for an estimated $500 million, the property will be reassessed. "It's complicated so there may be another case," said Jeff Campen, assistant Monterey county administrative officer. "With the recent formal transaction and reassessment of the property, we may be going through this whole process again."

Currently, the County of Monterey has a lien against the property to secure payment of property taxes. The unpaid taxes became a lien against the property as a matter of course on March 1, 1991. Including a 10% penalty, a total of $3.5 million is in arrears, and the second property tax installment of $4.4 million is due on April 10. If the taxes are not paid on that date, a redemption penalty of 1 1/2% per month is added to the tax bill.

As reported by Monterey Country Tax Collector, Lou Solton, "the current property tax bill for Pebble Beach

Pebble's photographer William C. Brooks dies

WILLIAM C. BROOKS

WILLIAM C. BROOKS, who for over three decades immortalized the scenic beauty and the high society of Pebble Beach in his world-famous photographs, died March 2 of cancer at his son's Menlo Park home. He was 78.

As the official photographer at Pebble Beach from 1953 until his retirement in 1986, Brooks captured the images of every dignitary, major politician, Hollywood star or foreign royalty to visit the famed resort.

He was among the last of a unique breed of photographers and his career spanned an era dominated by S.F.B. Morse, founder of Pebble Beach and its vast holdings — an era glorified on the society and sports pages of the world's leading newspapers and magazines.

Brooks recently completed selecting photos from his file for inclusion in a book on the history of Pebble Beach for Golf Digest, and he also established a scholarship fund for continuing students of photography at Monterey Peninsula College.

He began his career at Pebble Beach as the assistant to Julian P. "Spike" Graham and many of his early photos appeared over the "Julian P. Graham Studio" credit line. After Graham's death in the early 1960s, Brooks acquired the photo studio and operated it under the name of Pebble Beach Camera Shop.

Over the years he photographed Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gerald Ford, Senators John Kennedy and Adlai Stevenson, astronaut John Glenn, the Shah of Iran, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, the King of Belgium, Salvador Dali, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor and even Ringo Starr on horseback. His camera caught Bing Crosby in a classic pose under an umbrella and his moody photograph of the 18th fairway of Pebble Beach Golf Links under a cloudy sky has never been duplicated by other photographers.

He was the photographer of choice for countless weddings of the rich and powerful. Although he photographed the famous, Brooks was a quiet and self-effacing man. Few people knew that he served as an infantry lieutenant in the Battle of Guadalcanal during World War II. Recovering from malaria at Camp Roberts, he first came to Carmel for a prearranged blind date, where by coincidence, he met his future wife, Ilsley "Lee" Bartlett. They were married within a month and settled

Council deflects Voice's provocative survey

By PAUL WOLF

DEPENDING ON who is doing the judging, the latest Voice of Carmel survey is either a clear testimonial to the city council's recent missteps on important issues, or a ploy by opponents who sought certain conclusions.

Survey results were made available to the press and city council Tuesday, March 3.

"I think they lost a lot of credibility with these kinds of biased questions," said Mayor Jean Grace in a phone interview with the Carmel Pine Cone. "It's a lot like the question, 'When did you stop beating your wife?' "

Despite this sentiment, the Voice of Carmel is managing to be a persistent thorn in the council's side, as this last survey concludes the council is out of step with public opinion on issues like the Hatton Canyon Freeway, mini-parks and the planned recreation use of Rio Park.

"There is no basis for our city government to act, over and over again, contrary to the views and interests of the majority ...," wrote Voice president Olof Dahlstrand, in a conclusion attached to the survey results. "This (the survey results) indicates to us that a 'no confidence' situation is approaching."

It's well-known the Voice of Carmel, a public benefit corporation, is composed of people critical of the current council. Besides Dahlstrand, names on its board include Dahlstrand, Clint Eastwood, Robert Evans, Fred Keeble, Pat Sippel, Joseph Chaffers, Howard

I DRIVE Highway 1 several times a day between Ocean Avenue and Carmel Valley Road or Rio Road. The longest it has ever taken me to drive through this portion of the project area has been five minutes during the worst congestion, which usually occurs during the time period of 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. The acknowledged bottleneck is the intersection of Highway 1 and Carmel Valley road. Going south from Carmel Valley Road to Rio Road has never been a problem even during the above time period. Going north from Rio road, there is also congestion due to the Carmel Valley Road-Highway 1 intersection.

This can be readily solved by means of an undercrossing from southbound Highway 1 to eastbound Carmel Valley Road, which can be accomplished in a

Masters of Food & Wine

IN THE ranking of special events on the Monterey Peninsula, the Masters of Food & Wine must be considered an upstart.

But what a start, pardon the play on words.

In just six years this event has become recognized as one of the foremost of its kind anywhere. Fortunate for us, it is here.

While other events — the AT&T, Monterey Jazz Festival and Pebble Beach Concours come first to mind — are more entrenched in the community because of their longevity, they could learn a few things from the Masters of Food & Wine.

Many of the established events reflect their age. They've become traditions, yes, but they have been relatively inflexible when it comes to introducing new and fresh personalities to their audiences.

In fairness, we know the Pebble Beach Concours is sensitive to pressures for change, the Jazz Festival has a new leader who promises new venues along with the traditional, and AT&T is still in transition from the Crosby days, but let's face it — they are predictable.

The only thing predictable about the Masters of Food & Wine is that each year it is better than the previous, leaving everyone wondering what next year will bring. Most important, perhaps, is that this event is a wine and culinary summit meeting for all ages.

How exciting to see such venerable notables as Robert Mondavi sharing a podium with young Veronique Drouhin or Daniel Boulud assisting his mentor Roger Verge at a cooking demonstration or the wonderful debut of the innovative Roy Yamaguchi.

There is a blending of generations at the Masters of Food & Wine that ignites the senses and challenges the depths of creativity. No, this event does not fill every motel room on the Monterey Peninsula, but it does fill another kind of service.

This event is host to a major and important international audience of chefs and wine makers, who take their impressions home with them. From what we've seen, the Masters of Food & Wine exemplifies the true meaning of hosptiality.

Narrow description

Dear Editor:

Carmel Citizens For Good Government is a non-profit association of Carmel residents. The board of directors includes Merv Sutton, vice president; Phyllis Howard, and Judy Lyle, as well as myself, chairman, and four men who are also members of the Voice of Carmel: Clint Eastwood, Howard Nieman, Alan Williams, and Joseph Chaffers.

Last week's Pine Cone article reporting the formation of Carmel Citizens For good Government was captioned inappropriately. "Business interests" form a new "PAC to counterpunch CRA" too narrowly describes the new group and its purpose. Carmel Citizens For good Government is concerned with the welfare of all Carmel citizens, whether or not they are engaged in commerce. We reside and vote in Carmel-By-The-Sea. We decry the acrimonious, confrontational political climate prevailing at city hall, and positions based on labeling people "residents," "business persons," "merchants," "newcomers," "oldtimers," etc.

We believe that good government fairly responds to the needs and desires of its citizens. Council's unwillingness to respond favorably to the results of the Voice of Carmel's surveys, and the intrusive labyrinth of city ordinances and frustrating procedures dismay residents and business persons alike.

Many citizens are discouraged from participating in council and, planning commission meetings and from interacting with city. The Carmel Residents Association has become a registered Political Action Committee (PAC) which has members who monitor city hall proceedings, advocate political positions, and successfully influence elections and council decisions. In view of its recently avowed PAC status, the CRA does not function as an impartial group of people. The CRA leadership zealously promotes its views.

Democracy contemplates such activity, however, the lack of an effective organization espousing a position which may be opposed to the views or tactics promoted by the CRA is not healthy. The "Town Hall" system we have in our small community needs ore than one organized political group. Carmel Citizens For Good Government will attempt to balance the disproportionate impact the CRA has on our elections and council decisions. WE anticipate representing the views of all Carmel Citizens who look forward to living under better government, and who may not always agree with the CRA.

We hope to have lively debates and campaigns without rancor, and to nurture a healthy political climate which will result in elected officials and staff who are accountable to the will of the majority.

Lawrence response

Dear Editor:

With regard to last week's letters to the Pine Cone concerning my article "When You Have Always Loved Carmel," hold on a minute!

"Psuedo interview-conversation"? "Supermarket tabloid journalism"? Do facts and truths and the heartfelt words of a cross-section of citizens deserve such defensive, false labels?

As a professional writer, published in quality newspapers and magazines nationally and internationally for more than 20 years, my integrity has never before been questioned in this manner. I value that integrity as I honor the right of every individual to express his or her opinion.

I chose not to identify my sources as I have no wish to break confidences nor to pit neighbor against neighbor. However, I would be more than happy to discuss my research of the past eight months — including the comments and concerns of more than 300 people —with the board and membership of the Carmel Residents Association.

In the meantime, I respectfully suggest that the CRA take the time to study all the facts and to listen to the entire community, newcomers and longtimers alike, instead of only those who agree with them.

Hatton Canyon

Dear Editor:

The opponents of the Hatton Canyon Freeway are doing it all wrong. It is a well known fact, that in order to have a sympathetic following, it is better to take a positive, rather than a negative position .

A suggested positive position for The OOTHCFs might be; the Hatton Canyon for the Low Income Raccoons. The 'Coons need a new home! As all Carmelites probably know, there isn't enough housing for the LIRs. It is common knowledge that, in Carmel, if you leave your door open at night, to catch the Ocean Breezes, the 'Coons will walk right in, proving they have no where else to go.

The OOTHCFs might change their acronym to HCFTLIR, promise to allow all the LIRs free rent in Hatton Canyon, and in this way earn the eternal gratitude of all Carmelites who have been so bothered by the 'Coons, and also win the unending thanks of the LIRs who would have an eternal resting place in Heavenly Hatton.

Then when the Dreaded Bulldozers start their evil ways it's good-by Bulldozers. As anybody knows a Buck Racoon can stop a Bulldozer any old time.

Article sheds some light

Dear Editor:

What comfort it was for us to read your Heart-to-Heart conversation article, we now know that we are not the only ones who do not agree with some of the Carmel Residents Association (C.R.A.) tactics in promoting its own agenda. We hope that reading this article will open the eyes of other Carmel residents and that it will reveal to them that whether they like it or not they are being represented by a C.R.A. agenda that might not conform to their expectations. During a zoning hearing a list of signatures was submitted to our city council by the C.R.A., we are convinced that C.R.A.!s misinterpretation of some of the propositions made by Carmel's Planning Commission lead some residents to sign and endorse a concept of which they really didn't know the consequences of.

Beware of C.R.A.'s point of view about re-zoning, it is a short sighted and dangerous proposition that uses status quo as a basis to stop growth. Maintaining the existing zoning is non-productive and only perpetuates the problems it creates.

Carmel's election season officially underway

By PAUL WOLF

IN A lively, informal setting, candidates for mayor and city council introduced themselves to about 70 residents — and even began to delve into the issues.

Candidates began by telling how their personal histories have made them suitable for elected office. But toward the end of the 90-minute program Monday evening, March 2, at Carmel's Handley Room, real difference began to emerge on the issues, particularly on Hatton Canyon.

A brief question-and-answer period was a kind of preview of things to come. But Noel Van Bibber, president of the Northeast Carmel Neighbors Association, the event's sponsor, said the aim was to stay "low-key and personal."

In the race for two-year mayor's term, incumbent councilman Ken White, 57, a Monterey High School teacher, is being challenged by former three-term mayor Barney Laiolo, 81.

In the council race, there are four names vying for two four-year seats: Donald Kremer, a management professional and consultant; John Thompson, an artist and environmental activist; Phillip Coniglio, manager of Piatti Ristorante, and Barbara Livingston, owner of an interior design business.

Here they are in the order in which they spoke:

Don Kremer: Kremer, a family man with two grown children, described how 25 years with I.B.M. Corp., 10 of those years in management, has taught him "a lot about planning, a lot about negotiation, and a lot about compromise ... I learned how to make decisions."

Moreover, he drew an analogy between the corporate world and government, saying, "We are both in the business of products and services, of satisfying customers."

Kremer took early retirement in 1987, and focused on consulting. He serves on the Forest & Beach Commission and the Carmel Public Library Foundation.

"I'm an independent thinker and I'm attached to no particular interest group," he stated.

He identifies three pillars — residents, businesses and visitors — and they must be kept in balance.

On Hatton Canyon, he said: "I'm for solving the traffic problems of Carmel. I think we have studied and studied and studied this these problems. We have an agency that is ready to implement a solution. I think we ought to go ahead and implement the solution."

John Thompson: Thompson boasts of being born in Carmel during the World War II, and as a young person delighting in his hometown's status as a artists' colony. He described a personal progression from one Bohemian to another, all leading to a commitment: "serving people."

Thompson has taught everything from kindergarten to college, worked as a prison counselor and education director for the Monterey County AIDS Project. He playfully explained that anyone who's taught kindergarten is ready for Corporate America ... or even city government.

His environmental activism has been widespread, working, for starters, with a group called Concerned Citizens for Environmental Health. He has also done reporting for Paul Laub's Freedom of Speech periodical.

Other Carmel stories on pages 5, 7 & 9

On the question of Hatton Canyon, which came before all candidates, he said he opposes the development of a freeway.

Barbara Livingston: Livingston moved to Carmel as a child in 1936. She graduated from Carmel High School, working as a teenager at Village Hardware on Ocean Avenue. After graduating from Standford University, she moved to the Bay Area.

Since 1977, she has owned and operated an interior design business. "That we have remained solvent and even made money is amazing. I think this is a testimony to my fiscal responsibility."

Livingston is a founding member of the Friends of the Carmel Forest. Yet she said she has an additional "crusade": to patronize local-serving businesses.

She boasted that when she had her campaign kick-off party, she was urged by others to get her six cases of wine more cheaply from Costco. But showing fealty to residents-serving businesses, she bought them from Nielsons.

As a councilwoman, she would "look at the issues as a judge does — considering the motives, what they have to gain, what they have to lose."

Hatton Canyon: "As a founder of the Friends of the Carmel Forest, I could never condone the destruction of 10,000 trees in the canyon and the destruction of the wetlands that supports all that wildlife."

Phil Coniglio: Coniglio, who grew up "sweeping the floors and dusting the bottles" in his father's store, recounted how his interest in the local political scene emerged almost by accident.

He admitted in his college days, he wasn't much of a student. He tried Oregon, he tried Mexico; he ended up back here, back at the Mediterranean Market. Moreover, he learned of the struggles of a small-business.

"You just can't compete with the chain stores. My dad had a formula, but unfortunately that formula isn't working any more.

His interest in politics emerged after being appointed to the planning commission.

Coniglio said the City of Santa Fe could be an object lesson to Carmel, also at risk

Nieman, Jr. and Alan Williams.

The survey asked five questions of Carmel-by-the-Sea residents. The mailer pulled a 30 percent return rate from a combination of registered voters and non-voting property owners.

It states 57 percent of respondents are against the city's joining and helping to finance the lawsuit opposing the freeway, and 37 percent are in support, with 9 percent undecided.

It reveals that 63 percent oppose new mini-parks in the downtown, while 32 percent favor them and 5 percent undecided.

Also, 61 percent are reported against converting Rio Park from its present open space to a recreational area, "including on-site parking, baseball field and trails."

"I threw it out," Councilman Bob Fischer declared at the council meeting. "I see a disturbing trend toward biased questions."

Case-in-point

Grace said the question on the 6.5 acre Rio Park was a case-in-point, arguing that the question makes it sound as though "we'd put in a mass of parking" and a lavish recreation area, which is not set forth in the plans. The question, she said, "misrepresents" the facts.

On the charge of council's not being receptive to the community, Grace explained that the planning process for Rio Park, located behind the Carmel Mission, has included neighbors, and representatives from the Monterey Regional Park district, the Monterey Diocese and the sanitation district.

And on the subject of Hatton Canyon, there have been scores of public hearings.

The mayor argued that the phrasing in the other questions also sought desired responses.

"It's pretty obvious their goal is to slam and to criticize rather than help," said Councilwoman Barbara Brooks, speaking in a phone interview. She said if the group's aim was true it would have included a question on the commercial zoning issue, instead of choosing to wait until after the council has made a decision.

Nevertheless, the survey was provocative, and future surveys may again seek to put the council on the defensive.

Dahlstrand appeared before member's Tuesday evening to read the survey results aloud for the record. Although he listened attentively to assorted complaints about the survey, he defended its basic soundness.

"You have to admit, this is a fairly poor batting average (for the council)," he said. "Remember, these are not our opinions; they are the opinions of the citizens of Carmel."

Bill Brooks remembered

in Carmel.

Mrs. Brooks, well known in the art community of Carmel, died in 1989.

A 1970 news article about Brooks stated, "What is remarkable about Bill Brooks is not just his expert capability for quality photography, but also his anonymity as a photographer." Although he was on a first name basis with the famous, Brooks never sought fame for himself. As a consequence, his photographs were well known, but he remained a private person.

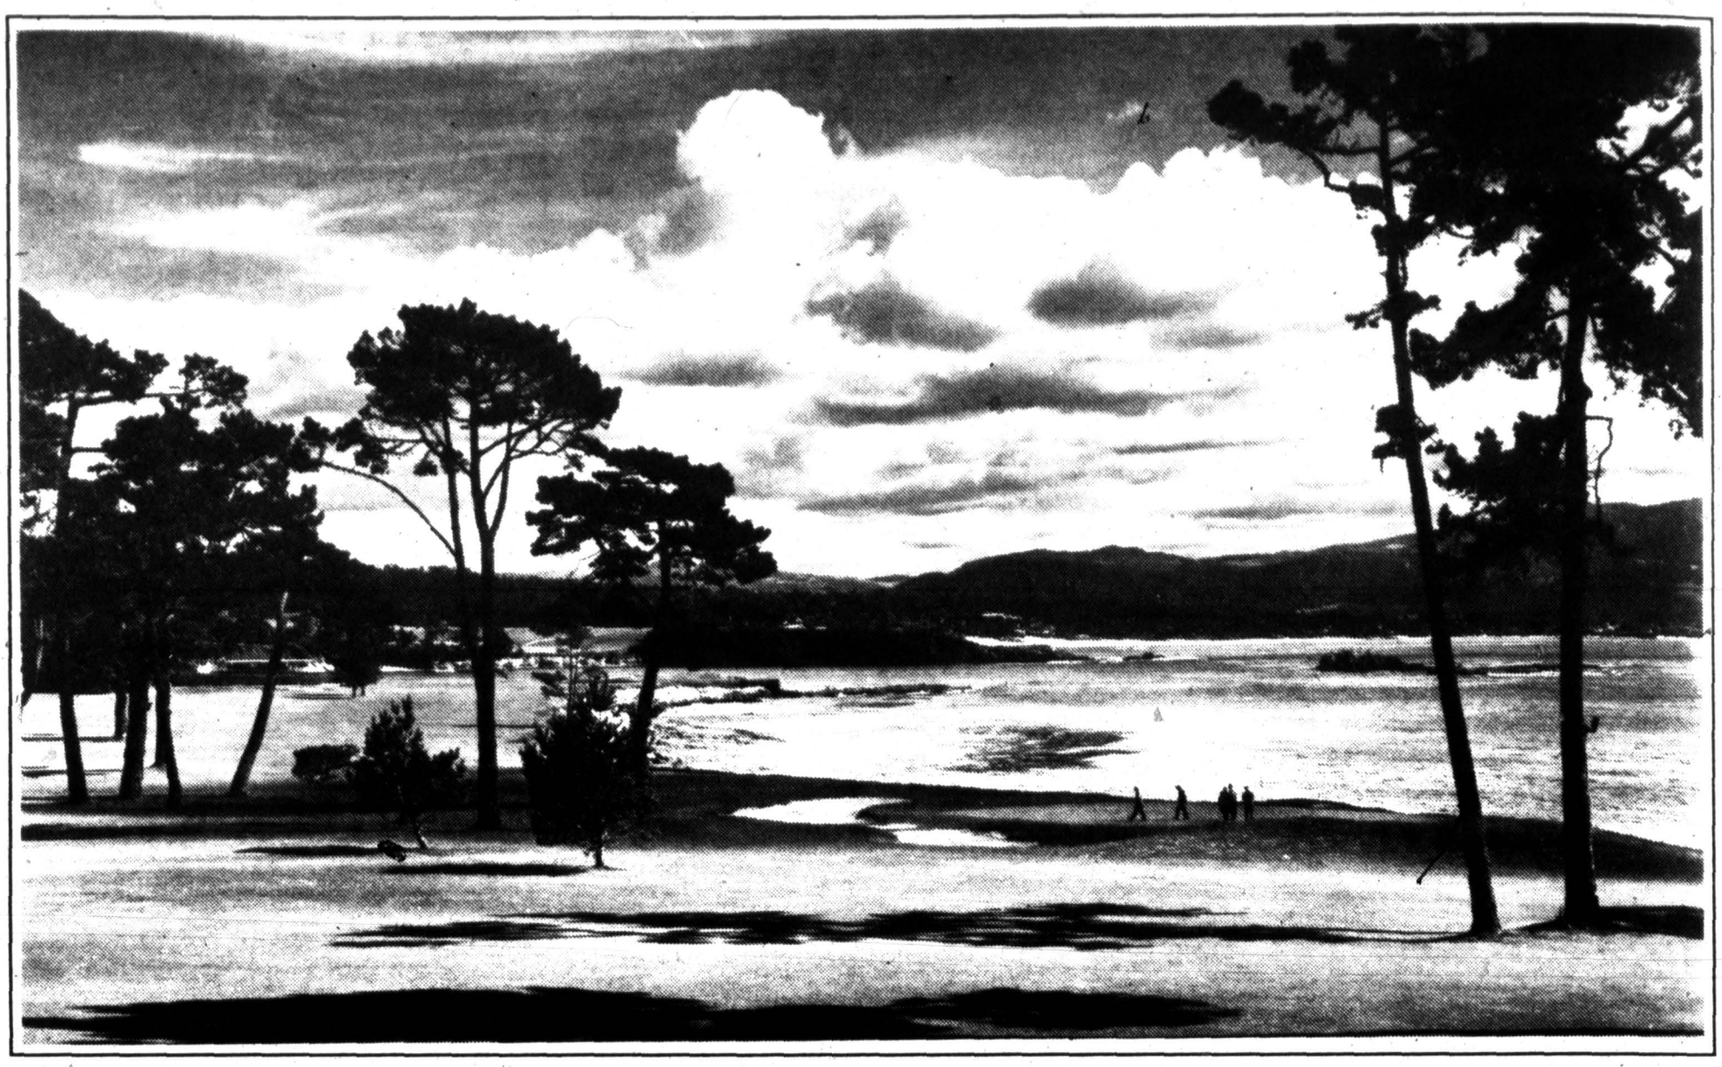
Only his intimate friends and fellow photographers knew him well. Among those:

Roger Fremier, head of the Monterey Peninsula College's photography department: "His eye was the eye that showed Pebble Beach to the world. His era was the time of black and white photography, and the tones in his photos were beautiful jet black.

He was always there with advice on darkroom work."

Sudy Macdonald, former publicity administrator at Pebble Beach: "He was one of the most charming, gracious and professional men I have ever worked with. And I will miss him and his southern gentleman quality. He was wonderful, he really was."

Steve Gann, a personal friend who worked with Brooks during the Crosby golf tournaments in the 1970s: "Bill gave me my start in photography. His black and white printing skills were exceptional, but the greatest thing about Bill was his sweetness."



WILLIAM C. BROOKS' famous photo of the 18th fairway at Pebble Beach has never been duplicated.

William Burkett, personal friend and former state superintendent of banks: "He was a great and talented man, a brilliant photographer who captured the great beauty and love of this area."

Tom Tousey, retired former owner of Camera Craft: "We worked together at Beaux Arts at the Pine Inn in about 1948. We mixed our own chemicals for our processing lab, which was black and white in those days, and Bill would mix it to the last exact grain and then he would add a pinch more. We would jokingly give him a bad time and he always said, 'Well, it works.'"

John Freitas, executive director of the Carmel Foundation: "He was a valued member of the photo workshop group and was always willing to help. He was a warm and caring man and a special friend of the foundation."

Brooks was born Jan. 19, 1918 in Patucah, Kentucky. He is survived by a son, Douglas R. Brooks, of Menlo Park; three sisters, Ouida Pfankuch of Warren, MI, Dora Campbell of Thousand Oaks, and Violet Crosby of Vienna, VA; two grand children and two great grand children.

Memorial services will be held at the Paul Mortuary Chapel, Friday, March 6 at 2 p.m. Following cremation at The Little Chapel-by-the-Sea, inurnment will be at El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove.

The family requests that memorial contributions be sent to the William C. Brooks Scholarship Fund, c/o Ray A. March, Carmel Pine Cone, P.O. Box G-1, Carmel, CA 93921 or to the Carmel Foundation.

amounts to $8.8 million per year, the highest property tax in the county." P G & E is second with $7.8 million, and Pacific Bell is a distant third, paying $1.8 million. The Basic Four Vegetable Products is fourth with $1.5 million. These totals are from the secured real tax property roll of $189 million for the county.

Public auction?

The county's options are limited in immediately enforcing the delinquent taxes. "The only other enforcement we have is the ultimate sale of the property through public auction or sealed bid process that would occur five years after delinquency began," said Solton. While 100 parcels a year are added to the delinquency rolls, very few of them result in forced sales and no one would predict this fate for Pebble Beach.

Nevertheless, the county does not have the revenue for the current tax year. Under formulas frozen by Prop. 13, agencies that provide services within tax code areas split the revenues from property taxes. The county's share of the general fund is approximately 26% or some $780,000. Other agencies, such as the Carmel School District, will receive the balance of the $3.5 million in property taxes.

"The $3.5 million currently owed in taxes is important for the county and we hope this issue is resolved shortly," said Monterey Country Board of Supervisors member Sam Karas. "The county stands to lose $780,000."

Under current law, property taxes are based on the assumption that the purchase price is the value of the property. In some cases, the county assessor will increase or decrease property taxes if he feels the purchase price does not truly reflect the value of the property.

If a taxpayers disagree with the tax, they can appeal to the County Tax Appeal Board which is appointed by the County Board of Supervisors. The Pebble Beach Co. has a hearing before the board in June. If the finding is not agreeable, the Pebble Beach Co. can appeal the case to the courts.

"The major disagreement in the Pebble Beach sale is over whether to equate the assessment and the purchase price," said Bruce Reeves, Monterey County tax assessor. "The disagreement appears to be over the value of the intangibles; the trademark, logo and business value. We assess the value of the property at $850 million."

The county used two methods to determine the value of the property. Non-real components were subtracted from the purchase price in one method and only the real property was appraised in the second. Reeves believes the second method is the more objective.

"One of the problems in assessing the value of trademarks and logos is that they are very subjective," said Sean Flavin from Flavin & Baker, legal consultants to the county tax assessor.

A national issue

Disagreements over "intangibles" in assessing real estate have become very important in the past year. In the Midwest and East, the issue began around the value of shopping centers. In Minnesota, for example, property taxes run 5 to 7% and the controversy over "intangibles" involves a difference of some $200 million in annual property taxes, according to Charles Knudsen, principal appraiser for the State Board of Equalization in Sacramento.

"This is a very important national issue right now, particularly for shopping centers and hotels," said Knudsen. "We could safely say this involves many millions of dollars in property taxes just in California. It could have a substantial effect on local governments."

The State Board of Equalization has held three meetings on the issue, the most recent one last week. They are considering a proposal, Rule 11 put forth by the California Taxpayer's Association, to place a value on "intangibles."

"People are saying that if Rule 11 were implemented in its current form, it could reduce the value of commercial assessments as much as 30 to 40% which is tens of millions of tax dollars," explained Bob Petersen, president of the California Assessor's Association and Santa Cruz County Tax Assessor. "This would have a substantial impact locally."

Subjective, abstract and esoteric

The major problem, both nationally and with the Pebble Beach assessment, is determining the value of a subjective, abstract and esoteric component — the logo and trademark. Some companies spend millions of dollars for the design and testing of a logo. Television and media exposure, costing hundreds of thousands of dollars, can go a long way in associating a particular logo or trade mark with a product and yet the value remains difficult to assess.

"In advertizing or any type of marketing, building an image around something, especially like Pebble Beach, provides very high market share," said John Wickett, president of Winston Advertising in Santa Clara. "If it's of high quality such as Pebble Beach, the name could be marketed beyond golf to a whole range of life style connotations as well."

While many products are available in shops at Pebble Beach and a Japanese company is currently licensing products for sale in Japan, Pebble Beach is not extensively marketing or aggressively licensing the Lone Cypress trademark or logo. Marketing personnel at Pebble Beach claim "we are still a baby" in this area. While figures are not being made public, no one suggested they come close to the $300 million placed on the logos's value by The Pebble Beach Co.

"We don't know how much it can be turned into cash value," said Leach, "but clearly it's a substantial asset. Japanese consumers are lovers of high-class brand-name products and quality logos sell very well in Japan. We are keeping all of our options open."

While the logo is a valuable asset that may increase revenues to support the new acquisition of Pebble Beach by the Sumitomo-backed Lone Cypress Co., disagreements over the value of the logo and other "intangibles" may rise like a Phoenix from the sale to haunt Monterey county taxpayers for years to come.

PBC quandary over Mobil 5th star

In the wake of official statements that the in-coming owners of the Pebble Beach Company desire to polish the symbolic jewell that is Pebble Beach, Daisuke Saji, chief advisor to the Lone Cypress Company, was asked in a recent interview if the new holding company planned to pursue a Mobil Travel Guide five-star status for The Lodge at Pebble Beach.

Since 1988, The Lodge at Pebble Beach has earned a four-star rating by Mobil.

"That, of course, is our target," Saji said, "Pebble Beach is the landmark of California." He went on to stress goodwill, hospitality and the recognized reputation of Pebble Beach, and added an oblique reference to "intangibles."

This declared intention to win a fifth star poses a dilemma Saji may eventually appreciate if he is to pursue a higher, and coveted, ranking: The Lodge has always been eligible for the fifth Mobil star, but PBC powers have been content with four stars for several years, according to informed sources who watch the ratings closely.

Observers of the Pebble Beach Company say officials are more interested in the Japanese and other lucrative tour groups that regularly stop to take photos of the Lone Cypress tree and the 18th fairway before shopping the arcade for souvenirs, then they have been in a prestigious ranking.

The tourists — apparently — create an unacceptable amount of foot traffic to warrant a fifth star, but PBC translates foot traffic into much needed revenue. For fifth star status, buses and camera-toting visitors equal four stars not five, in the eyes of Mobil.

Asked if Lone Cypress Co. intends to meet Mobil's criteria, Saji didn't answer specifically other than to say he was supportive of the fifth star. Potentially, that could mean the elimination of tour buses and large tourist groups at Pebble Beach.

Mobil Travel Guide Editor AliceWisel wouldn't confirm the tour group theory, saying "Rating information between a property and the publishers of the Travel Guide is confidential." She also wouldn't comment on the specifics of the rating system beyond saying any resort awarded four stars is "worth a special trip."

One only has to go back 18 months to remember that because of these restrictive zoning laws, leases were being sold for tens of thousands or dollars and rents were going through the roof and all that did was to make the landlord rich and chasing away the small and unique quality shop that Carmel was known for. In other words the restrictive zoning was creating scarcity and scarcity created inflation. Should the economy pickup again the same problem will be back and higher rents along with it. In order to pay higher rents retailers will have to augment their odds by offering more popular, less original and usually lower quality, lower price products. So good-bye to the unique Carmel shops that are now catering to a quality oriented clientele and welcome to those who need the masses to exist, is that what we, the residents of Carmel-by-the-Sea, want? And that is only one of the ill effects of what C.R.A. proposes.

Carmel will keep its beauty and attractive standard of living as long as it provides its people with a quality oriented growth. Status quo can only bring decay, mediocrity and frustrations. Our city administrators have to create a positive and harmonious atmosphere in its exchanges with the business area of Carmel if its wants to maintain the quality of life its residents are used to. To this day C.R.A.'s attitude does not encourage that state of mind.

The way we see it the Planning Commission's proposals do not encourage the enlargement of the business district of Carmel nor do the restrict the community oriented businesses. On the contrary they advocate a more efficient zoning concept that in turn will benefit all of us, residents of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

One more opinion

Dear Editor:

I grew up in northern California and then spent 25 years in "dreaded" Los Angeles before my wife and I realized a long standing dream and became Carmel residents three years ago. As a "newcomer", I realize that the last thing Carmel needs is one more opinion but perhaps a thought or two from a real resident[who actually lives in Carmell and was a tourist not so long ago might help. So here goes:

All businesses in Carmel are resident serving. As much as Carmelites hate to admit it tourism is Carmel's business. If we made automobiles here we'd all work at the "plant" and pray the plant never closed. Our businesses are not manned by aliens from outer space. For the most part they are locally owned and the employees live here.

As tourists we never tired of visiting Carmel because it was so unique. We purchased artwork from local artists and were thrilled to meet them, we ate at local restaurants,stayed at local hotels and "snacked" at local delies and bakeries. It seems ironic to me that while half the city is up in arms ahout where the commercial zone should end, no one seems to care about what's happening in the existing commercial section. The city council wants to limit art galleries and jewelry stores which for the most part sell works by local artists and craftsman yet seems to welcomes chain stores like Sharper Image, Coach Leather, Banana Republic and Mrs. Fields into every space vacated by our local bus iness people. If there's any solution to the problem here it should begin with a realization that we're all in this together. One doesn't have to align himself with a residents association or a business orqanization and follow either like a bunch of sheep. Let's start by eliminating the line down the middle of Clint's building and maybe that will open up the line of communication between the two camps. We might even get them to realize we're all on the same side.

Business as usual?

Dear Editor:

The Congress. the Senate and all the presidential candidates have all been bringing up the so called "middle class" and wanting to help them with various tax cuts and credits.

This help for the "middle class" could begin right here on the county and state level. Macy's collects the sales tax does not remit to the state who then can not pass on the legal share to the cities. But nothing happens. Macy's continues to operate, but what if it was a small or middle class merchant they would be right at his door step and probably closed up before very long.

Pebble Beach sells. not once but twice. Transfer taxes are not collected, property taxes are in arrears, but business goes on as usual. Once again _ the middle class home buyer or small business buyer pays the tax when escrow closes and when due or else. There are laws, they are clear so lets not just sit back and wait until the "big class" is ready to conform.

Atheist responds

Dear Editor:

I am so weary of reading that old saw: "There are no atheists in foxholes," and now in his wisdom Father Farrell (in a recent issue of the Pine Cone) has added another: "None on ships, either." As a lifelong atheist and a member of two large atheist organizations I can say I have known many atheists who have been in foxholes and on ships—war ships. They fought in WW II, the Korean War and the Vietnam War. Some suffered grievously, others came home unscathed—but none of them prayed during their ordeals.

A god deserving of reverence would never have created the existence of "foxholes. " A god, were he to exist, would deserve bitter hatred for the unendinq pains and tribulations he has brought to mankind—the countless foxholes of life. If you are free of this mythical support system you learn to stand on your own, courageously, accepting this imperfect world and doing your best to improve it.

Gerard d 'Abeville was approached when he landed after rowing alone across the Pacific Ocean and was asked by a reand repeated dangers and fearful of death, did he pray to god. He replied emphatically that he did not, being too busy simply trying to survive!

Quality goods and service

Dear Editor:

I read with interest the letter from Mr. Kenneth Bullock where he questioned "what other local service business now exist?"

I thought he might like to know that Carmel Camera Center has been here serving the local community since 1976. Over 80 percent of our customers are local and in an average year we serve a local over 100,000 times. He also might be interested to know that it is our commitment to serving the local community with great services and products that has us ranked in the top one percent of all one-hour labs in the United States.

The assertion that some local stores are more costly than out-of-town "supers" is probably true, though as I've personally found and many of our customers continually tell us, the quality of goods and the commitment to outstanding service found in downtown Carmel shops is priceless!

I invite Mr. Bullock and others to give the downtown merchants another look and I think you'll be pleasantly surprised at the large number of us who are very busy on a daily basis serving the local community.

House numbers

Dear Editor:

The issue of house numbers will soon and the ambulance had trouble finding the house.

The problem is emergency vehicles have trouble locating residents in distress, yet the residents want to retain an atmosphere of non-conformity which house numbers destroy. The answer is to retain the no-house number policy, yet devise a system in which emergency vehicles, such as police, paramedics, and fire engines, can find the correct address quickly and accurately.

I suggest a system of driveway lamps of three colors. Green would be for guests; red for fire; and yellow for medical emergency. Residents would keep their lights off until needed. Then, if trouble arises, the call can be, "The yellow light between Dolores and Seventh." There could be permutations of lights such as green and yellow means deliver UPS, etc.

Let Carmel resident's solve this problem as a model to solve other vexing Carmel problems which have defied solutions, such as commercial zoning, traffic congestion, tree control, etc.

Council approves new fire protection ordinance

By PAUL WOLF

THE CARMEL City Council approved an ordinance forbidding new combustible roofs in residential areas.

The council's unanimous action, taken at its March 3 meeting, bans many kind of new roofs and roof replacements, including all made of wood. These include specially "treated" wood shake roofs, which fire officials say have significant fire-retarding properties.

The kinds of materials still available are clay, concrete, cement fiberglass, steel and fiberglass.

As originally drafted by Carmel fire staff, the ordinance had allowed "factory pressure-treated" cedar shakes, which were classified in a slightly less safe category. But council members decided to strike the provision on Tuesday evening's first reading of the ordinance, for the sake of potentially "saving both homes and trees."

On another point, however, council members thought the fire department's original recommendation was too restrictive. The draft law had required all new roofs to be constructed of non-combustible material, and new fire-safe roofs be put in when 25 percent or more of the roof is destroyed.

Council members agreed 25 percent would be a hardship on the property owner, and 50 percent was a fairer standard.

Mayor Jean Grace asked her colleagues to picture a scenario in which a property owner had to replace his or her entire roof because a tree fell on it, or there was storm damage, and a mere quarter of the roof was destroyed.

Two projects

The fire-resistant roofing law is the result of two projects coming to fruition.

The other long-term project came before the council in the form of a residential sprinkler law on the same evening. But the council delayed action on that one for at least 60 days.

The ordinance would require residential sprinklers to be installed in new homes or along with major remodels.

Art Black, the city's fire prevention specialist, was on hand to present the ordinance, provide statistics, and convey the message that similar ordinances are taking root in other communities.

...Wood shake roofs are out, fiberglass and steel are in...

While council members appeared warm to the idea, they requested more time to look into costs and possible insurance breaks to property owners.

The council's decision for a delay appeared in part spurred by certain comments from the audience during the public hearing.

Hidden costs

For starters, Sheryl McKenzie, government affairs director of the Monterey and Carmel Council of Real Estate Boards, noted there may be many hidden costs to the property owner — for example, if new pipes had to go in to accommodate the sprinklers during a remodel, or for maintenance of the sprinklers. She also argued that it is older homes, not new ones, that pose the greatest danger of fire.

Another speaker, Olof Dahlstrand, characterized the proposal as "bordering on 'Big Brotherism.' " He added, "Maybe the homeowner should be the one that makes this decision."

of rapid change. "It could happen here," he cautioned. Yet he also noted, "You can't prevent change."

Hatton Canyon: "There are some serious inadequacies in the EIR. There are two extremes: don't do it or really do it. There has to be a compromise. This has to be addressed. At Caltrans, they are the professionals. They have the money behind them. If we don't compromise they will probably get their way."

Ken White: First elected to the council in 1988, White hammered on the themes of building consensus, developing a friendlier atmosphere in politics and reaching out more vigorously for public participation.

"We've got to stop personalizing the issues and talk in some way we reach some conclusions," White said, referring to the often-caustic nature of Carmel politics.

He recited his credentials as a public servant, noting everything from 25 years as a volunteer fireman to experience as school board member.

He identified as a priority the improvements to the Sunset Cultural Center. In addition, White said it is about time for the city to draft an historical preservation ordinance, and possibly a preservation element in the general plan, which other cities, like Pacific Grove, have recently enacted.

On Hatton Canyon: White said the he feared that the somewhat narrow Carpenter Street would be inundated with traffic if the freeway is built. He advocated more traffic studies so a realistic picture can be achieved .

Barney Laiolo: Laiolo is a well-known name in Carmel, having served as its mayor from 1968-1972, and again from 1980-1982. With his bow-tie and dramatic speaking style, Laiolo described his Eleventh Hour entry into the mayor's race. It was no assault on White, but simply a chance "to provide a choice." He described his participation as enlivening the democratic process.

"Carmel is a big business, and we have to run it as a business," he declared. "Nothing bothers me more than an empty store — because that means no business license fees or sales tax."

He added: "A good percentage of our ordinances are not enforceable. We don't need to take away (property rights) by passing more ordinances. If there is a problem we should solve it."

Laiolo he hasn't solicited "one thin dime on his campaign," wishing to be beholden to no one.

Also asked about the Hatton Canyon Freeway, he said: "I think that we have to take our heads out of the sand and go ahead with it."

CUSD opposes statewide initiative for promoting public funds to private schools

DAVID LELAND

CARMEL SCHOOL officials have gone on record opposing a piece of legislation they say will undermine the welfare of public schools.

At a Feb. 27 meeting, the CUSD school board unanimously approved a resolution opposing the Parental Choice in Education Initiative, which is designed to provide more options for parents and teachers, and create more competition with public schools.

"It would appear to create more problems than it solves," said CUSD school board member Gary Gray, offering his best understatement. After all, board members had nothing good to say about the initiative. They did have plenty of worries.

The initiative would allow parents to receive state vouchers for each school-age student. The vouchers could be cashed in at scholarship-redeeming private or parochial schools, or at public schools that have converted to independent scholarship-redeeming schools.

The initiative, driven by Joseph Alibrandi, chief executive officer of a Southern California aerospace firm, was drawn up to help inner-city children attain a better education and reduce bureaucracy.

"These private schools could help the best and the brightest, but they would leave the hard-to-educate for public schools," said CUSD Supt. Vance Baldwin, who drafted the resolution. "This is not a proposal that will improve public schools."

The district is restricted from campaigning against the intiative, since it is limited in how much it may play advocate. The resolution, however, outlines its fears and states its opposition.

These worries are that:

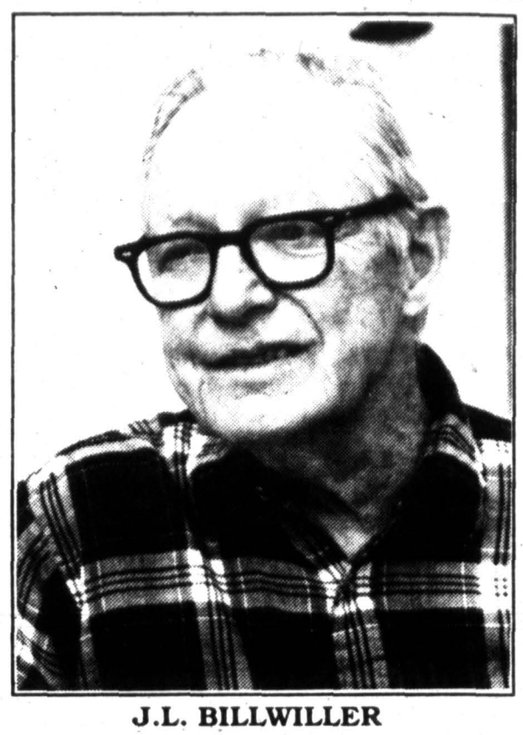
- The voucher system as planned would be fundamentally discriminatory, as the $2,500 per student voucher is not enough to fund most private school educations. Thus only higher-income families would be able to take advantage of them.
- Such a system would be granting public money to unregulated public schools, where there are no curricular or behavioral standards, or no safeguards against discrimination on the basis of religion, sexual orientation, academic achievement or medical conditions.
- By "siphoning tax dollars from our public schools" to pay for vouchers of private school children, the measure would cost California taxpayers $1.5 billion a year.

Widespread opposition

There is widespread opposition among the Carmel school system's teachers, according to one source, although the teachers association has not taken official action.

However, the California Teachers Association, the umbrella organization for certificated employees, is fighting the initiative. Next door, the Pacific Grove Unified School District, on March 5, will consider a similar resolution opposing the measure, and the Monterey Peninsula school system has already taken action.

Backers of the initiative have until May 28 to gather 615,958 signatures, and have been blanketing the area with professional signature-gatherers who are paid by petition-signer.



J.L. BILLWILLER

CRA's 1991 citizen

WITH MUCH fanfare, Carmel's J.L. Billwiller was proclaimed the Carmel Residents Association's 1991 Citizen of the Year.

The award ceremony was gala event attended by over 100 people, including city and county leaders. Billwiller was the recipient of the fourth such award, bestowed by the CRA.

A resident since 1979, Billwiller, 78, was a key figure in the expansion of the Harrison Memorial Library. He is also credited with getting started the Carmel Public Library Foundation.

In addition, Billwiller is a former library trustee and leader of the Friends of the Library.

CRA President J.S. Holliday said the association received 18 nominations for the honor, and the final selection was made by committee.

Recipients of the award to date are Jim Wright (1988), a council member the past eight years, Joyce Stevens (1989), and Enid Sales (1990.)

Big Sur general plan

THE STATE Department of Parks & Recreation planning team will continue its scope of work next week for Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park when allowable uses and problem resolution are discussed.

Meetings will take place at 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 10, at the Monterey Convention Center; and 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 11, at the Lodge Conference Room at Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park.

Those interested in the park are urged to attend at least one of the two meetings, which will help the planning team evaluate alternatives and select those most appropriate to guide for future management of the park.

After selecting a single plan, the data will undergo California Environmental Quality Act scrutiny and be heard by the full state parks commission.

News analysis

Carmel, PG have similar problems

By PAUL WOLF

IN TOWNS like Carmel and Pacific Grove, where residents prize the beautiful setting above nearly anything, the struggle to limit or block new homes on private open space is a noble aim.

But the recurring lesson, as seen from two current news items, seems to be how frustrating such efforts can be. Both the Stewart Property at Carmel Point — which sits outside the Carmel city limits and is under county jurisdiction — and PG's Rocky Shores are good cases in point.

They show how handcuffed government can be when it comes to stopping or limiting private development, no matter how desirable that may be to those looking through the lenses of environmental preservation.

In any case, those goals can only come at a big price: either the cost of buying the property owners out, or the cost of fighting it out in court.

Pacific Grove, with the help of the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District, is having a measure of success with the first solution. But no one is particularly eager to try the second.

Stewart property

Although it is taking years, development plans are going forward at the Stewart property.

The owners of the lots received good news that the Monterey County Planning Commission, Wednesday, Feb. 26, voted to certify an environmental impact report that studies the development of eight single-family homes at the Stewart property. The EIR said such construction would result in "less than significant" environmental impacts.

(The residentially zoned property is bordered by Scenic Road and Ocean View and Isabella avenues. Until several years ago, the land served as home to the stately Stewart mansion.)

Opponents of the EIR, like neighbor Charles Chrietzberg, say the document is flawed and incomplete. The EIR automatically goes before the Monterey County Board of Supervisors, and its tentative date for review is April 7.

"Legally, we can't do much as a county," admitted Eric Marlatt, an associate planner with the county, when asked about the county's discretion on the application.

He said regardless of what the final environmental review determines, development is a forgone conclusion. The real issue, he said, is the kinds of mitigations that will accompany development.

Chrietzberg, who lives at 26398 Isabella, said he learned long ago there isn't public money to buy the land. "There will be eight homes built there," he said, noting, however, that limits can be put on the size and type of development.

Rocky Shores

On the other side of the peninsula, there has been some hard-earned rewards for the community's efforts. The park district, with great help from the city, is in the process of buying four of the seven Rocky Shores lots.

(Rocky Shores is located between Asilomar State Beach and the Lighthouse Reservation, along Sunset Drive within the PG city limits.)

Nevertheless, the chances of stopping a second home from being built at Rocky Shores do not appear very good. The reason couldn't be simpler: the property owner, Stephen Page, wants a house.

As is the case with Carmel Point, an EIR declares "less than significant impact."

"This EIR is defective because it doesn't adequately consider the negative impacts of doubling the building there," said Walter Gourlay, chair of Friends of Rocky Shores.

But again, no matter what the outcome of environmental review will be, the issue is almost certain to remain not if something will be built, but what will be built.

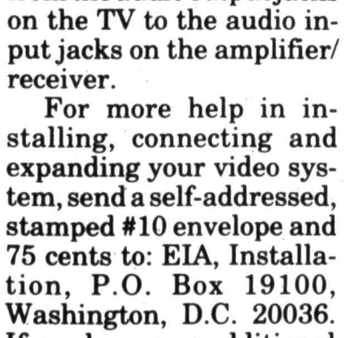
Enhancing Your Video System

Q: When I make copies of my home video tapes, sometimes the picture quality is bad and the sound is low, too. Is there an accessory that can help me?



A: A video signal booster—sometimes called an amplifier—which can be hooked up to two VCRs when one is recording what the other is playing, will improve the quality of the copied picture and increase audio levels as much as 20 decibels. It helps if your picture is snowy, your sound is weak or if interference is a problem.

Q: I have a new stereo TV. I've heard it will sound even better if I play it through my audio system speakers. How do I do it?

A: To connect your stereo TV to your audio receiver, you will need one dual connector cable to run from the audio output jacks on the TV to the audio input jacks on the amplifier/receiver.

For more help in installing, connecting and expanding your video system, send a self-addressed, stamped #10 envelope and 75 cents to: EIA, Installation, P.O. Box 19100, Washington, D.C. 20036. If you have any additional questions, write Sally Browne, c/o EIA.

Carmel Valley Boy Scout Troop 127 kicks off cleanup program

By SUSAN BECK

THE BOY Scouts of Troop 127 in Carmel Valley are the first group in Monterey County to take on the Adopt-A-Roadway-Program.

Established in January, the Monterey County Public Works Department designed the program to allow nonpolitical organizations, corporations, groups and individuals to participate in maintaining and enhancing Monterey County's roadsides.

Troop 127 has 35 members and their scout master, Michael Milligan, said that the troop got involved to practice management skills, which is part of the passage to being an Eagle Scout.

The contract with the county requires roadway cleanup for two miles, four times a year, for two years.

The designated area for Troop 127 is from Boronda Road two miles east along Carmel Valley Road, and the initial cleanup will be sometime this month.

Practicing management skills requires the scouts to arrange manpower for each scheduled cleanup day, make sure a lunch is provided, and be responsible for all of the required equipment. The cleanup teams will consist of 10 boy scouts with two adult supervisors.

Milligan said that Randy Randazzo, owner of the Carmel Valley Market, has offered to provide lunch for the workers on the first cleanup day.

"I have always provided the lunches whenever there has been a cleanup in the village. I like to be involved, but I can't take time off from work, so I participate by donating lunch," said Randazzo.

In May of 1991, Troop 127 engaged in a similar effort as a Eagle project.

"I loved it," said Milligan, "I flagged people to slow down and you can't believe how much the public appreciated the effort. It was very well received."

Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman met with troop members on Monday to set the program in motion.

"I see this as a good example of volunteer spirit. I recognize the beauty of our road system and know that it is very important to our residents. This is a maximum opportunity to involve people, and I am especially excited to get young people participating. Perhaps this is their first experience with local government. I told the kids that they are good role models for the community. This is a program that everyone will benefit from," said Strasser Kauffman.

The Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club sponsors Troop 127. Gary Carmichael, club president, said that the Troop 127 is one of the best Boy Scout troops in the area, and its leader, Milligan, is extremely dedicated.

"I think its a great idea. I hope more people will get involved," said Carmichael.

Garland Park hearing

ON WEDNESDAY, March 11 at 10 a.m. the Monterey County Planning Commission will continue discussion on the proposed expanded use permit for Garland Ranch Regional Park in Carmel Valley.

The commission delayed any decision concerning the park's plans because of the controvery about a bike trail, which is included in the expansion plans.

Commissioners agreed to visit the area on March 4 to take a first hand look at the bike trail.

Art class

Have you ever desired to pick up a pencil or brush and create a masterpiece of color and design? Now you can help make that dream come true. Janice Elizabeth Harvey of Carmel will be teaching an art class on the creative process for children and adults at the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center starting March 10.

Janice is currently an art consultant at a local gallery and received her formal education in art at the California College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland. She realized she was artistically gifted in high school and since that time has been obsessed with art whether it be painting, drawing, teaching, or selling. She is a commissioned artist as well as private tutor in her studio in Carmel.

Janice will teach one session specifically geared towards artistic children. She will help them explore their talents and draw out their inner sense of creativity regarding subject matter, composition, color, and design, while instructing them in the basics of art. This class will be held at the Activity House on Tuesdays from 3:45-4:45 p.m. and Saturdays from 11a.m. to Noon.

Adults who have always been interested in art but have never really done anything about it are encouraged to attend Janice's adult class sessions on Tuesdays from 4:45-5:45 p.m. and Saturdays from Noon to 1 p.m. Janice believes it is "everyone's right and responsibility to explore the unique qualities within" and is dedicated to helping people direct their talents.

Classes begin on Tuesday, March 10 and reservations for the eight sessions may be made by calling Janice at 626-4546. Cost for one month of instruction is $50.

Belly dancing

If art doesn't interest you but you are still anxious to bring out your inner creative self, how about trying belly dancing? Farah Boutte, an innovative performer and instructor of Mid-Eastern dance, will be teaching a class at the CV Community Center beginning Thursday, March 5 from 7:30-9 p.m.

Farah has toured with Lionel Hampton's Orchestra, performed with Herbie Mann and Noel Pointer as well as appeared in traditional Middle Eastern venues such as the Egyptian Gardens in New York. Farah operated a dance studio and produced a television program relating to Mid Eastern Dance in San Juan, Puerto Rico and has performed throughout the country.

Farah's class will be geared to the level of the enrolled participants covering or reviewing basic isolations characteristic of this form of dance and stressing those aspects which provide for cardiovascular enhancement and conditioning. Farah's ten week session will be held at the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center on Thursdays from 7:30-9 a.m. and the cost is $5 per class. For more informatin call Farah at 449-6670.

Vivien Gruchy, vice president and women's wear buyer for the ladies department of Derek Rayne, Ltd., recently retired after 40 years at the Ocean Ave. shops in Carmel.

In 1952, Gruchy arrived from her native country, England, and joined the firm as assistant to her aunt Mrs. Charles Rayne, in the newly organized women's department.

Prior to her move, she was an officer in the Women's Royal Naval Service during World War II. She drove an ambulance during the dark days of the London Blitz, and also was stationed in India.

Pamela Pantzis, manager and sportswear buyer succeeds Gruchy as women's wear buyer.

"Miss Vivien", as she is known, plans to remain in Carmel and spend more time devoted to her garden. Long time customers won't lose track of her, as she'll often be at the shop. "After 40 years it's going to be a habit hard to break", she admits.

Cousins, Clive Rayne and Derek Rayne express their gratitude for Vivien's loyal service to the family business, which was established at its present Ocean Avenue location in. in 1944.

Local enterpriser Andy Briant and his wife, Theresa, have opened Royaltees, a store specializing in offering a large selection of active sportswear.

Located on San Carlos Street and Ocean Avenue, Royaltees, caters to men, women and children in providing an abundant supply of warm-up suits and sweatshirts.

Andy Briant, who adds that Royaltees is an inside joke on his English lineage, said the store is a must for locals, who will notice the conspicuous absence of glitzy design.

Charles T. Crietzberg Jr., chairman and CEO of Monterey County Bank announced that Debra Encinias was named Employee of the Year for the bank from among 12 Employees of the Month for 1991.

Ms. Encinias has been with the bank two and a half years and was honored at the Annual Employee Holiday Dinner.

Additionally, Chrietzberg announced that Ms. Encinias has been promoted to assistant vice president. In her capacity at the bank, she is note department supervisor, administrative assistant to the president and a consumer loan officer.

Ms. Encinias lives in Seaside with her husband and two children.

Chrietzberg also announced the promotion of Milo Farotte to assistant vice president and operations manager of its Monterey Main Office.

Farotte has been with the Bank since January 1991, as operations manager in the Carmel Office and has had over 20 years' banking experience.

A resident of Holliser, Farotte grew up on the Central Coast and spent his early years in the San Jose area.

In addition, he also announfced the promotion of Sherry Marian to operations manager of the bank's Carmel Rancho Branch.

Ms. Marian has been with the bank in the Carmel Rancho office for a year and a half as new accounts representative and most recently as operations supervisor. She was named Employee of the Month in August 1991.

Imagine analyzing every daily action in every department of a 290-room hotel. That's exactly what was recently done in 16 departments of the MontereyPlaza Hotel, a Forte Grand Hotel on historic Cannery Row.

The "Standards Of Performance," fondly referred to as the'SOP's', were written and created to encourage consistentstandards throughout the hotel. It proved to be a perfectopportunity for the Monterey Plaza Hotel to draw on the resources of the international collection of Forte Grand Hotels. Hotel General Manager and Vice President John de Canha believes that both guests and employees will benefit from this program.

"The'SOP' is an integral part in the ongoing training process ofoffering consistent service throughout the hotel," de Canha stated.

Rosemary McVey, a training manager from Forte Hotels inGreat Britain, spent two months in Monterey meeting with managersand line staff to create the Standards of Performance. HumanResources Manager Kyoko Wilson was the in-house contact chargedwith coordinating this massive undertaking. The end resultyielded nearly 2,200 separate tasks and 5,300 individual picturesand diagrams.

The individual tasks of each department wereidentified, documented and illustrated by the department managersbefore being placed into a performance manual. Reservations, forexample, has 180 tasks, illustrated by 600 pictures and diagrams.Housekeeping has 325 tasks and nearly 1,000 pictures and diagrams.The culinary department has 159 tasks and 536 pictures anddiagrams.

Says de Canha, "We have established a solid foundation forquality training and employee development within the MontereyPlaza Hotel, thus ensuring a well-trained work force providingprofessional service for our guests."The "SOP's" will be updated continually and will beincorporated into training programs from this point forward."

VIVIEN GRUCHY, vice president and women's wear buyer for the ladies department of Derek Rayne, Ltd., recently retired after 40 years at the Ocean Ave. shops in Carmel.

The Monterey Plaza Hotel is part of the Forte Grandcollection within the Forte Hotels Family. This collection ofhotels, which are unique, provide excellent standards oftradition, comfort and indulgence for the discerning guest.

Points of view

THE MASTERS of Food & Wine, a culinary event held for the sixth year at Highlands Inn south of Carmel, draws a worldwide delegation of notables ranging from 75-year-old Robert Mondavi to 20-something Allegra Antinori, whose family traces their wine making history in Italy to 1385.

The casual confidence, camaraderie and perspective of these visitors may give us a clearer view of an event that happens in our own backyard. Many of us pride ourselves on our knowledge of fine food and wines but sometimes we look too far afield and miss the obvious.

Asked for his impression of the Masters of Food & Wine, celebrated French chef, cookbook author, teacher and television personality Roger Verge replied in a courtly manner:

"I think it's wonderful we can meet and exchange ideas in this beautiful place."

Robert Mondavi, known for his persistence in the pursuit of excellence in wine making complimented the Masters:

"My wife and I have traveled the world but nothing can equal what you at Highlands Inn have done day in and day out during the Masters of Food & Wine. This is an intimate gathering of the best from both America and Europe."

Jim Clendenen, owner/winemaker, Au Bon Climat, Los Olivos was awed:

"Highlands Inn Sommelier Mark Jensen took a great leap of faith when he invited me to pour my wines this year. He was very bold. My vines are only 25 years old. This event represents 500 years of winemaking and culinary expertise."

Manfred Prum, Weingut Joh. Jos. Prum, Wehlen/Mosel, Germany, offered a 1976 Graacher Himmelreich Riesling Beernauslese and said:

"Ten years ago the Masters of Food & Wine didn't exist. Ten years ago, the world was much different. Wines go back in time, past presidents, past politics."

Margrit Biever Mondavi's personal reaction to the Opening Night Tasting Extravaganza:

"The crowd at opening night was small in comparison to other events like the Wine Experience in New York; 1,000 people trying to taste 170 wines. Here the wines are so accessible. I love that this event is not enormous."

Helmut Horn, president of Coastal Hotel Group, whose original idea of a pairing of American and German cuisine has evolved into today's Masters:

"In offering the Masters of Food & Wine, our interest is not only to educate and heighten awareness of the culinary arts but to deepen the enjoyment of that happy love affair."

Burt Williams, Williams Selyem Winery, Healdsburg, Calif. appreciated the location:

"This is the classiest place to come. Our wives love this place and when they're happy, we're happy."

Burly chef/teacher Bruce Aidells on the scene in kitchen:

"These guys are among the best in the world. Instead of delegating the s___ work, everyone does everything. This is a true chef's holiday. They don't sit in the sun, they hang out in the kitchen."

Highlands Inn Executive Chef Brian Whitmer: "I thank my parents and God for giving me the opportunity to be here."

Local residents are just becoming aware of the scale of the event. Lucy Reno of Pebble Beach was impressed:

"This is my first brush with this, but it may become a regular event for me."

Janet and Rocky Rotharmel of Carmel Valley have been coming to the Masters of Food & Wine from the beginning, six years ago.

"It's wonderful, we're never disappointed. We're on the mailing list, otherwise we would never get a reservation. Everything sells out."

Other local regulars include Sue Dewar, Artie Early, Blossom Hampton, Dory Urcis and the Master's biggest fan, Gloria Dake. A wine and food expert put the event in perspective for local residents:

"The Monterey Wine Festival is a trade show catering to wine salesman and shouldn't be compared to the Masters."

Tia Gindick of Monterey is a devotee:

"They bring out the reserve wines. The Masters is the best wine event there is."

To borrow a quote from Robert Mondavi, "What's wrong with telling the truth?"

This year over 40 journalists from around the world came to the Monterey Peninsula to witness and record cooking demonstrations by internationally renowned chefs Roger Verge and Giuliano Bugialli, sample dishes from some of America's best restaurants and experience wine tastings that included the greatest white wine in the world, Montrachet.

Bon Appetit, Feinschmecker (the German Gourmet magazine), Great Hospitality Magazine from England, New York Times, Esquire International, Golf Digest, Conde Nast Traveler, Wine Spectator, and Wine News were among the publications covering the six-day event.

And that's saying something.

MORE ON THE MASTERS

Larry Stone, Master Sommelier at Charlie Trotter's restaurant in Chicago, was among the sommeliers who poured wine at the Masters of Food & Wine. Stone will represent the USA at the Association de Sommelier Internationale, a competition to determine the best sommelier in the world. He will travel to Brazil for the event, held once every four years.

Italian master chef Giuliano Bugialli set the audience straight on the proper definition of "pesto." Pesto is the result of grinding something with mortar and pestle. Different regions of Italy have different pestos. Some Italians make pesto with brains.

Chicago chef Charlie Trotter described his first encounter with Roger Verge. "I dined anonymously six years ago at his restaurant in Mougins, France. He came to my table to see how the meal was and I felt so nervous, he could have been a rock star."

Highlands Inn Food and Beverage Manager Paul O'Dowd included a mushroom tour in the week's activities led by nationally known mushroom expert Jack Czarnecki. Mother nature cooperated and thanks to February rains, the Central Coast mushroom crop is reputed to be the best in 10 years.

PEEPS

Friends of the Monterey Institute of International Studies who attended the Leap Year party at the home of Nick and Gaby Hahn were amused by the seven-foot wine glass in the Hahns' wine cellar and by the story of how it got there. Of more serious interest were the Hahn's art collection and the brief remarks by Dr. Ruth Larimer, assistant for language education. Dr. Larimer gave an update on the students and alumni from MIIS who are working as interpreters around the world.

Barbara Klatt, president of the Cypress Chapter of Children's Services Center reported another banner fund raising year for the Carmel-based group at the annual general meeting held recently at Fandango.

races and in a typical year will raise over $30,000. They work almost every race, barbecuing chicken and hamburgers, serving vegetable and fruit plates. Everyone pitches in to help, including the husbands, serving as many as 1,000 in a day, sometimes without benefit of running water.

Money raised goes to adoptions on the peninsula with additional funds earmarked for the Cypress Educational Fund, which assists young people over age 18 who are no longer eligible for foster care assistance. This year Cypress Chapter has a student graduating from UCLA.

International cook book publishers tell us Near Eastern cuisine is emerging as the newest trendy food. Luciano of Luciano Antiques in Carmel is offering four local couples an opportunity to try Moroccan delicacies first hand in his "casbah" near Marrakesh. He has donated four days in his villa with a view of the Atlas Mountains complete with meals catered by one of his three chefs to the lucky group who win the bid at the Jester's "Taste for Art" held at La Playa Hotel, Thursday, Mar. 12. HELP ADD YEARS TO SOMEONES LIFE...

There is probably no other way in which one person can do as much good, in such a little time, as by giving blood. So why not give in and give a little. Blood is the gift of life that only you can give. Patients with cancer, heart disease, hemophilia and other serious medical problems need hundreds of units of blood every day.

The Red Cross/Community Hospital can show you how easy it is to become a blood donor. The actual donation only takes minutes, but it may add years to someone's life. Share your good health and save lives. A Bloodmobile will be held in the Carmel American Legion building, Thursday, March 5, from 10 a.m. until 2:30 p.m.. Luncheon will be served to all donors. Parking available.

PRE-LENTEN DINNERS START FEB. 28

The Italian Catholic Federation #36 Monterey California announces that they will begin their traditional Lenten Season Fish Dinners with a pre-Lenten dinner to be held on Friday, Feb. 28 beginning at 6 p.m. and serving until 8 p.m., at the San Carlos Cathedral Hall, located at the corner of Church and Figueroa streets in Monterey.

This annual series of fish dinners by the I.C.F. membership are proudly prepared and served by some of the greatest cooks on the Monterey Peninsula.

The menu for Friday, Feb. 28 will include fresh tossed-green salad with Italian dressing and fresh garlic bread, authentic Italian pasta with homemade pesto sauce, fresh filets of fish breaded and seasoned in regional Italian style, Old-World Italian-style toasted hot garlic bread and coffee or tea. All inculsive for a donation of $7.

A wonderful variety of freshly made desserts are available from the dessert table for 50 cents each.

The regular schedulreof I.C.F. Lenten dinners will begin on Friday, March 6 and will continue each successive Friday, at the same time and place, until Friday, April 17, (Good Friday), which will be the last of the I.C.F. Lenten Fish Dinners for 1992.

No reservations are required. Dinner tickets are available at the door. Doors open at 5 p.m.

This is a family-style dinner. Bring the children. Lots of free parking behind the Cathedral Hall.

Student of the Month

SIBYLL MAAG is Carmel High's Student of the Month, selected by the Foreign Language Department. An exchange student from Zurich, Switzerland, she is spending her senior year at CHS, living at the home of Jack and Patty Cowles and family. Maag is planning to go to a university and, very likely, study law. School officials report that her experience has been an education for her, but it has also been for all those around her who are learning about another culture and the Swiss educational system. Flying high

SPRING IS in the air and our thoughts are already turning to summertime and vacations. If you're planning an airplane trip and your dog or cat will be traveling with you, I have some tips that will make the experience safer and more pleasant for you and your pet.

• Start with a visit to your veterinarian for a thorough checkup, an update on any vaccinations and a health certificate.

• If your pet is the nervous type who doesn't travel well, your veterinarian may recommend appropriate tranquilizers. Follow the doctor's orders to the letter when dispensing.

• When making travel plans, try to book a direct flight to avoid uncomfortable layovers and the chance of a missed connection for your pet.

• The airlines are very specific about the types of carriers pets travel in. They must be large enough so that your pet may stand and turn around with ease. They also must be properly vented and have a water dish that clamps to the carrier. They should have an absorbent covering on the bottom. Be sure that your carrier meets the airline's specifications to avoid last-minute problems.

• Do not feed your pet for about 6 hours before departing.

• Be certain that your pet is wearing a comfortable collar and ID tag. His carrier must have a permanent label with the same information as your pet's tag. Also include destination information on the carrier.

• If your pet is small and his carrier will fit under your seat, many airlines will allow him to ride in the cabin with you. If he must travel in the baggage compartment, use an airline that will hand-carry your pet's kennel to and form the aircraft rather than transporting it on a conveyor belt. Also, if you avoid the busiest travel times, you may find that personnel will be able to give you more personal attention.

We phoned United and American Airlines to inquire about the temperature in the baggage section of the plane. We were told by both airlines that the temperature is kept between 50 degrees and 70 degrees and that should be fairly comfortable for your pet — although it could be better.

If your best friend isn't a seasoned air traveler, make his first trip as easy on him as possible by planning well in advance and being aware of his special needs.

Pet directory

We've heard about a travel directory for pet owners listing more than 3,000 hotels and motels nationwide that permit pets. It also provides a listing of more than 1,000 veterinarians and pet-sitters nationwide along with tips for pet boarding.

"Pets-R-Permitted" sells for $8.95. Write to ACI, P.O. Box 66006, West Des Moines, Iowa 50265-9410.

This isn't an endorsement—we don't have a copy. If you order one and like it, please let us know!

That's all for this week. See you next time.

Nothing lasts forever

IMAGINE, IF you will, that you are horseback riding in a beautiful valley. The dust rises up form your trusty steed's hooves as the two of you meander down the dirt road. The sun warms your bare arms and the gentle breeze caresses the long strands of Spanish moss that is elegantly draped about the limbs of majestic oaks.

You look down wonderingly at the paw-prints left behind by a mountian lion in the dirt on the side of the road. A little way up the road, a tiny brown bush bunny darts across the road and into the sage bush. You peer into the bush to look for the rabbit as you pass by, but the bunny blends in too well.

You and your mount go around the bend and come upon a golden meadow. Two deer look up from their afternoon grazing and calmly walk into the forest.

When you get to the top of a small hill, you gaze out over the valley and reflect on how beautiful it is. Since it is a warm and clear day, you can just about see the ocean in the distance, and you can see for miles back into the valley. The peacefullness and tranquility is breathtaking.

What I am describing is a trail ride back into Carmel Valley. The dirt road winds up and behind Quail Lodge and various agricultural fields. The country back there is very beautiful and, thus far, untouched by man. Whenever I ride up there I am reminded what a beautiful place the Carmel Valley and the Monterey Peninsula is and how lucky I am to live here. Also, since I am basically a "townie", I see a lot of wildlife I would usually not get a chance to see. Thanks to this ride, I've seen a flock of wild turkeys and a (living) skunk.

Unfortunately, all of this unparelleled beauty and serenity is about to come to an end.

The last time I was back in this part of the valley, I was greeted by a rather unpleasant sight. The majestic oaks with their shawls of Spanish moss were gone. In their place were sticks signifying that a new housing development was going in. The bush bunnies' homes were plowed under. The mountian lion tracks had been replaced by the treadmarks of bulldozers and dump trucks.

Even though it was a warm, carefree, clear day, I felt a chill. As I rode among the staked-out home sites, I knew my time to ride back there and enjoy the pristine environment was limited. I watched a flock of wild turkey wander aimlessly through the packed dirt, where tall, golden grass and oak trees used to grow. It's another case of man playing god and saying that "this has got to go."

I'm not really an environmentalist, but it saddens me to see pristine, untouched land torn up like this to satisfy someone's whim. Saying that the land was simply going to waste by not being utilized is a poor reason for destroying it. The land was home to a variety of flora and fauna, which has now been either destroyed or pushed further back into the mountians.

I suppose the old adage "nothing lasts forever" applies here. I know that watching beautiful, pristine land transformed into dirt patches has brought that idea home to me. So, when I look out onto Mount Toro from Los Laureles Grade and see the Santa Cruz Mountians rise above the early morning mists of the Monterey Bay, I'll stop and appreciate the sight — for I know it won't last forever.

Season Opener just around the corner

ITS THAT time of year again! Opening Day will be Saturday, March 28.

Festivities will include the traditional Pancake Breakfast, beginning at 8 a.m. (tickets available at the field). Players should be in uniform as team pictures will be taken throughout the morning, starting at 8 a.m. (coaches will have the schedule). Round robin games at noon will follow the 10 a.m. opening ceremonies.

A scorekeeping clinic will be held Wednesday, March 18, from 7 to 9 p.m. in Room L3 (library building) at Carmel Middle School. The clinic will provide scorekeeping basics for volunteers in the Mustang, Bronco and Softball divisions.

HELP WANTED! After six years of reporting games and league news in this column, I'm moving on to other activities. CYB is looking for the "write" person to continue bringing game highlights to players, parents and fans.

If you're interested in a fun, seasonal, volunteer position, and would consider picking up the pencil, call me (624-2389) for more information.

GOURMET SPECIALITIES TO MARK TOR BENEFIT

Gourmet hors d'oeuvres created by talented chefs will feature the third annual Tor House benefit, sponsored by the Carmel Board of Realtors, on Friday, March 6 at Whittakers garden and gift shop in Carmel.

Accompanying the hors d'ouevres will be a selection of fine vintage wines donated by local wine merchants and vintners. In addition, cash prizes will be awarded some lucky ticket holders.

Tickets for the benefit will cost $12.50 each, and the party will be held from 5-8 p.m. The tickets will be available at Whittakers, on Lincoln Street between Ocean and Sixth; at some Real Estate offices; and at the door on the evening of March 6.

Net proceeds from the event will be turned over to the Tor House Foundation, which maintains the Carmel Point home of the late Robinson Jeffers, the famed poet.

Three years ago, the Carmel Board of Realtors pledged itself, as part of its community relations program, to help the foundation maintain Tor House. The popular annual benefit is the principal way in which the board fulfills its commitment.

The event is chaired by Realtor June Oliverio.

short period of time and at nominal cost. Such a solution has been repeatedly proposed by local residents for 20 years, but dismissed by CalTrans as requiring cutting into the bank on the west of the intersection and undermining two homes above it. Yet Alternative 4 in the FEIS does just that without the problem stated in the past by CalTrans. Oddly enough, in this analysis presented by CalTrans on page II-8, there is no mention of what the expected driving time would be if Alternative 4 were implemented, or if just an undercrossing were constructed leaving the rest of the current Highway 1 as it is presently.

The point to all of this is that there is no evaluation of the time factor in the FEIS evaluation matrix. The question, therefore, arises as to how much is saving several minutes worth compared to the high cost of constructing Alternative 1-C, the severe adverse environmental impact of this alternative, and the time when this would be completed and the freeway opened.

A PROPER cost-effectiveness evaluation of the various alternatives analyzed in the FEIS would take into account the factors discussed in Part 1 and would assign weights and values to the evaluation factors in accordance with accepted decision analysis methodologies.

For example, suppose in the simplest case, and not considering the two additional factors mentioned above (time when completed and driving time), one were to assign values to the five ratings shown in Figure 2 of the FEIS, as follows: worst - 0, almost worst - 2.5, medium - 5.0, almost best - 7.5,and best - 10.0, in other words equal spacing of these comparative values, then the alternatives shown would rate as shown in Table I below.

Thus the "do nothing" alternative would be the preferred one, followed by widening of the existing Highway 1. The Hatton Canyon freeway alternatives would rank last.

Further, since each of the cost-effectiveness factors (cost, meets the need, the various environmental impacts, traffic time (congestion), time for completion, and others) are not equally important, if weights were given to each impact to reflect its importance, then a better evaluation can be made. Using weights I have arbitrarily assigned as shown in my response to the FEIS, the rankings as described above remain the same with even greater disparity between as shown in Table II below. Others can assign their own individual set of weights, but I doubt if the resulting outcome would change much, if at all, with respect to the preferred alternative.

Table I - No weighting

Alternative	Cost	Meets Need	Flood Plain Impact	Noise Impact	Natural Resource Impact	Traffic Congestion	Aesthetic Impact	Sum
1A	0.0	10.0	0.0	2.5	0.0	10.0	0.0	22.5
1C	0.0	10.0	7.5	2.5	0.0	10.0	0.0	30.0
3	7.5	2.5	7.5	0.0	7.5	2.5	5.0	32.5
4	7.5	2.5	7.5	0.0	7.5	2.5	5.0	32.5
6	7.5	5.0	7.5	0.0	5.0	5.0	0.0	30.0
7	0.0	10.0	7.5	2.5	0.0	10.0	0.0	30.0
None	10.0	0.0	7.5	0.0	10.0	0.0	10.0	37.5

Table II - Weighting

Alternative	Cost	Meets Need	Flood Plain Impact	Noise Impact	Natural Resource Impact	Traffic Congestion	Aesthetic Impact	Sum
Weight	0.8	0.5	0.5	0.5	0.8	0.8	0.4
1A	0.0	5.0	0.0	1.25	0.0	8.0	0.0	14.25
1C	0.0	5.0	3.75	1.25	0.0	8.0	0.0	18.0
3	6.0	1.25	3.75	0.0	6.0	2.0	2.0	21.0
4	6.0	1.25	3.75	0.0	6.0	2.0	2.0	21.0
6	6.0	2.5	3.75	0.0	4.0	4.0	0.0	20.25
7	0.0	5.0	3.75	1.25	0.0	8.0	0.0	18.0
None	8.0	0.0	3.75	0.0	8.0	0.0	4.0	23.75

These analyses illustrate that using the CalTrans subjective rankings from worst to best with or without weighting, the alternatives for the Hatton Canyon Freeway (1A, 1C, 7) are the least cost-effective ones, while the alternatives for widening the existing Highway 1 (3,4,6) are preferable, and doing nothing is best of all.

cost estimates

As I mentioned in my comments on the Draft EIS in 1987 (page P-84 of the FEIS), I have been tracking the CalTrans cost estimates since 1971. The updated estimates are shown in Table III.

Table III

YEAR	HATTON CANYON	WIDENING HIGHWAY 1
1971	$ 5.4 MILLION
1974	$ 7 MILLION
1982	$17 MILLION	$0.6 to $1.0 MILLION
1984	$25 MILLION
1985(EIS)	$22.9 MILLION	$2.7 to $8.4 MILLION
1990	$26.2 MILLION	$3.5 to $7.5 MILLION
1991	$33.4 MILLION	$5.3 to $9.4 MILLION

Note that the estimate for the Hatton Canyon jumped by 50 percent from 1982 to 1984, reflecting a more realistic estimate by CalTrans. However, in the 1985 Draft EIS estimate, the estimate for the freeway went down, while the estimate for widening Highway 1 went up from 4.5 to 8 times! This despite the new interchanges at Carpenter Street, Carmel Valley Road and Rio road. I challenged these estimates in my comments on the Draft EIS (page P-84). The CalTrans response to my comment was ludicrous, indicating that the 1984 estimate included inflation to the estimated time of construction, but that the 1985 costs were current year costs and not projected for future construction time.

As I stated in my comments in the draft EIS, I estimated at that time (January 1987), 1991 costs were more likely to be in the $30-35 million range, using a 5 percent inflation factor from earlier estimates. It is interesting to note that the current FEIS estimate (in 1991 dollars) is right in the middle of my previous estimates. It is also interesting to note that from the 1990 estimate to the 1991/1992 estimate, there has been a $7 million dollar increase by CalTrans, a 25 percent increase in one year! This indicates that previous estimates were indeed inaccurate and an attempt to justify Alternative 1 on a cost basis.

Using five percent inflation and my estimate that the freeway, if ever built, will be delayed until the 1998-2000 time period, my current estimate is that it will cost between $55 and $60 million. Is this cost-effective when compared to the much lesser cost of widening Highway 1, which could be accomplished in the next two to three years and thus provide relief from traffic congestion much earlier, or building an underpass at Carmel Valley road, which could be accomplished in less than a year?

The best alternative?

It is quite apparent that the Final EIS does not represent the true situation with regard to selection of the best alternative. Considering the extremely adverse environmental impacts, concerns still being expressed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service on adverse environmental impacts on the Hatton Canyon, an inadequate noise analysis, the meager saving of two to three minutes in driving time over this 2.8 mile stretch, the high cost of the freeway and the time element, I am convinced that Alternative 4 is by far the best and proper one.

Finally, I hope that the above comments along with those that have been raised by others shows clearly that the FEIS is faulty, and that there is more than adequate cause to require that it be redone or that a supplemental EIS be prepared.

ELECTION·92

Livingston resigns

Barbara Livingston, candidate for Carmel City Council, announced today that she is resigning as president of Friends of Carmel Forest, an official city support group to avoid a potential conflict with city's political-activity policy.

"Carmel's trees are not political, nor is Friends of Carmel Forest in any way involved in political activity," said Livingston. "Certainly no politics were involved in the Burl Ives concert to benefit the trees or when the Friends raised the reward fund to find the still unknown persons who poisoned two rare cypresses on Scenic Road. However, to avoid even the appearance of being in conflict with this city policy I will resign."

City Administrator Doug Schmitz, who notified Livingston that she may be violating the city's political-activity policy, said it was a gray area and it was up to Livingston to act or not.

Friends to meet

A special meeting of the board of directors of Friends of Carmel Forest will be held at Sunset Center at noon Monday, March 9, to consider granting Livingston a leave of absence and to elect an interim president, according to Livingston's announcement.

March 6, 7 p.m. at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel.

Thomas will reveal her ways of understanding and using some of Jung's ideas for herself and in relation to her husband, sons, and daughter. Then participants will make their own responses to excerpts from Daryl Sharp's book, Jung Lexicon: A Primer of Terms and Concepts.

For many years, Thomas was director of religious education at St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Pacific Grove. An insightful dialogue is anticipated as participants compare their experiences with those described by Thomas.

The public is invited to this and all other events sponsored by the Friends of C.G. Jung. This is an informal collection of people who are sharing an enthusiasm for the seminal writings of the famous Swiss physician. They are finding practical applications of those writings in their daily lives.

Prior registration is not necessary; a modest donation is suggested. For further details, please call or write: 649-4018; 284 Foam Street, Monterey.

DAY OF PRAYER SET FOR MARCH 6

The 105th anniversary of World Day of Prayer will be celebrated Friday, March 6, by Church Women United in 170 countries and regions of the world in a worldwide chain of prayer.

On the Monterey Peninsula, the celebration begins at 9 a.m. at the Carmelite Monastery, Highway 1, Carmel. At 1 p.m. the celebration will be repeated at Church of the Oaks, 841 Rosita Road, Del Rey Oaks.

Refreshments follow each meeting.

Theme for the 1992 celebration is "Living Wisely with Creation," a service written by women of Austria, the Federal Republic of Germany and Switzerland..

OUTLET CENTER HOSTS BRIDAL FAIR

The AmericanTin Cannery Outlet Center will host its third Annual Bridal Fair, Saturday, March 7 from noon until 6 p.m.

The Hyatt Regency, Pacific Grove Florist, Silver Service, Black Tie Limo Service and Contemporary Catering are just a few of the many exhibitors joining the Outlet Center to provide brides and grooms an excellent variety of assistance in preparing for their "special day."

Susan Henderson of The Finishing Touch will coordinate a fashion show with gowns from Custom Wedding.

"Bridal Registry will take place at Royal Doulton and Barbizon, where each bride will receive a keepsake Wedding Checklist when she registers. Gifts will be given away to guests, brides, and a special drawing co-sponsored by KWAV" according to Jan Hanson, manager.

For further information call 372-1442.

PUBLIC MEETING ABOUT FORT ORD SET

A public meeting on the environmental impact of Fort Ord disposal and resue will be held on March 5 in the main conference room of the Hyatt Regency Monterey located at 1 Old Golf Course Road in Monterey from 7-10 p.m.

The meeting will be conducted by the Sacramento District of the U.S. ARmy Corps of Engineers and the purpose of the meeting is to obtain information from the public on environmental issues and concerns that should be addressed in the Environmental Impact Statement being prepared by the Corps.

Individuals or groups with ideas for reuse of the property after closure should submit them to the Fort Ord Task Force, 445 Reservation Road, Suite E, Marina, 93933, or to their local city or county agencies. The EIS will include environmental impact discriptions of the resue options and the socio-economic effects of the closure.

ST. JOHN'S TO PLANT CEREMONIAL OAK

The ceremonial planting of an oak tree will mark the start of the Centennial Building Fund Campaign at historical St. John's Chapel (Episcopal) in Monterey on Sunday, March 8.

Following the 11 a.m. service at the Chapel, an oak tree will be planted to symbolize the congregation's commemoration of the past 100 years of service to the Monterey area and its aspirations for the future. The new oak tree will replace an ancient one which was cut down recently because of damage caused by the drought.

Building plans for an addition to the Parish House will be discussed at a luncheon immediately following the tree-planting ceremony. "Our goal is $200,000 for the new building," said the Rev. Jerome F. Politzer, rector of the parish, "and we are pleased to announce that we have already received $90,000 in advance gifts and pledges.

"The additional space is badly needed to accommodate the community groups that use our facilities, as well as meeting the needs of our choirs, youth groups, and Sunday school," continued Father Politzer.

St. John's is celebrating its centennial year on the Monterey Peninsula. It is located on Mark Thomas Drive and Josselyn Canyon Road in Monterey.

BRIDGE CLUB RESULTS REVEALED

On Wednesday, Feb. 26, Carmel Community Bridge held a handicap game. The highest score was won by Pete Goode and Jill Leach who, with their handicap, scored 112 on an 84 average.

Goode and Leach played North/South and in that position second place was won by Beth Oliver and Ed Von Adelung; third place by Phyllis Sokol and Barbara Yeomans; fourth place by Chan Smith and Irma Stanley.

East/West first place was won by Betty Jackson and Ted Holt; second place by Barbara Smith and Dorothy Sodorini; third place by Marjorie Cook and Sue Finley; fourth place by Alma Connell and Vera Marcolli.

Carmel Community Bridge invites all bridge players to attend their games, which are held every Wednesday at 1 p.m, Parish Hall, Lincoln and 9th St. Call 625-4307.

On March 11, the game will be a Swiss team event.

Care bears

THE QUOTA Club of Monterey and Pacific Grove purchased and donated 225 teddy bears to the Monterey County Childrens Protective Services Department. The bears were presented to Sue Campbell (far left), deputy director of Protective Services, by Quota Club President Patricia Tempel (center), and Billie Strong, community services chairperson. The goal of the Quota Club is to provide Quota Care Bears to each child taken into protective custody by a social worker and police officer when the child is removed from their home because of neglect, abuse, abandonment or in cases of family emergency. The county estimates that 200 to 225 new cases will be recorded in 1992. For further information on Quota and its community services, call 624-5395.

Obituaries

Max Lee Brady

Max Lee Brady, of Carmel, died of cancer on Feb. 22. He was 56.

A native of Enid, Okla., Brady was born April 21, 1935. During the Korean conflict, he served with the Army as a field artillery operations and intelligence specialist.

Brady, a resident of Carmel for 25 years, was employed as a bar manager and bartender and was well known in the restaurant business on the Peninsula.

Over the years, he had worked at various locations including the Butcher Shop in Carmel, the Sardine Factory in Monterey and the Monterey Peninsula Country Club.

He is survived by a sister in Oklahoma. The Mission Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

E.S. L. Goodwin

E.S.L. Goodwin, of Pebble Beach, a retired Navy captain, died at Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital on Feb. 10. He was 87.

A Pebble Beach resident since 1960, Capt. Goodwin was born in New Orleans on Oct. 1, 1904. He was appointed to the U.S. Naval Academy in 1921 and served in the Navy for 31 years, 14 of them at sea or abroad. The most significant of his duty assignments was with the National Security Agency. He served in the Asiatic-Pacific, American and Euro-African-Middle Eastern theaters and received the Bronze Star, along with several other medals and citations.

In 1964, he earned a doctor of philosophy at the University of Michigan, jointly from the School of Business Administration and the Department of Sociology. Capt. Goodwin subsequently taught at Sacramento State University and the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey.

He is survived by his wife of 59 years, Elizabeth. At his request no services were held. The Mission Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

Leonard Maurice Grimshaw

Leonard Maurice Grimshaw, of Carmel and Carmel Valley, a retired fireman and fire engineer, died on Feb. 21 of cancer at the Hospice of the Central Coast. He was 76.

Born May 26, 1915, in Beaver, Utah, he had lived in Carmel since 1923 and was a descendant of the pioneer Hodges and Grimshaw families. A graduate of Sunset School and the Monterey High School class of 1935, Grimshaw, known as Maurice, was an Army veteran of World War 11, serving in the 440th Field Artillery Battalion.

He and his father operated the Tidewater Service Station in Carmel for many years. Before becoming a full-time fireman, Grimshaw served as a volunteer fireman in Carmel.

He was a member of the White Rock Club of Carmel Valley and the California State Firemen's Association. He retired from the Carmel Fire Department in 1970. His son, Patrick, died in 1970.

Grimshaw is survived by his wife, Dorothy; a stepson, Frederick Ford of Ventura; three grandchildren; and two greatgrandchildren.

At his request, no services will be held. Private cremation will take place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, Pacific Grove, under the direction of the Paul Mortuary.

The family prefers that any contributions in his memory be sent to the Hospice of the Central Coast, P.O. Box 2480, Monterey, 93942.

Howard Thomas Keith

Howard Thomas Keith, a self-employed interior designer, died on Feb. 26 at his Carmel home. He was 54.

Keith, who was known as Tod, was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, on March 19, 1937. He was a graduate of the Cincinnati Art Academy and was employed as an interior designer in both commercial and residential design for 30 years.

Keith lived in Carmel for the past 17 years and was a member of St. John's Chapel in Monterey.

He is survived by his wife, Marilyn; a son, David of Los Angeles; and his mother, Bess Keith of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Memorial services were held at St. John's Chapel in Monterey. The Paul Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Hospice of the Central Coast, P.O. Box 2480, Monterey, 93942.

Rosalie Loubens

Rosalie Loubens, of Carmel, died of a brain tumor on Feb. 13 at Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital. She was 86.

She was born Nov. 25, 1905, in Mexico City, where her father, an American citizen, was in business. Loubens moved to California in 1912 when, because of unrest in Mexico, all American women and children were ordered out of that country by President Taft. She was educated in public and private schools in California, including Miss Williams' School in North Berkeley, and later attended Occidental College in Southern California.

Loubens was a frequent visitor to Carmel since 1943, when her sister, Eva Sorey, established a business there. Before moving to the Peninsula a short time ago, she was a longtime resident of the Elmwood district of Berkeley.

Afflicted by severe deafness due to measles at the age of 7, she taught and studied the art-of lip reading, in which she became highly proficient. She devoted her adult life to various philanthropies, with special concern for elderly and handicapped people, particularly the hearing impaired.

In addition to her sister, she is survived by several cousins.

At her request no services will be held. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Hospice of the Central Coast, P.O. Box 2480, Monterey, 93942, or to the donor's favorite charity.

Patricia L. Melusky

Patricia L. Melusky, of Pebble Beach, an avid golfer, bridge player and community volunteer, died Feb. 22 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula from complications with adrenal cancer. she was 71.

Melusky was born June 29, 1920, in Seattle, Wash. She attended the University of Washington and, following her marriage 50 years ago, she lived in many cities in the U.S. and in Paris. During World War 11 she was the first female employee since World War I at the Texaco refinery in Marrero, La. She was a member of various naval officers' wives clubs and while at the Naval Postgraduate School she was a member of the Staff Wives Club and served as an adviser to the Officer Student Wives Club.

A member of the Carmel Presbyterian Church, she was active in the church's Yellow Brick Road, Taegu Cirde and United Presbyterian Women. She was also a volunteer driver for 17 years with Meals on Wheels. She played golf with the women's clubs at the Naval Postgraduate School, Fort Ord and Rancho Canada. She was also a member of the local American Contract Bridge League unit.

She is survived by her husband, retired Navy Capt. Thomas A. Melusky; two daughters, Lania Bryant of Myrtle Beath, S.C., and Melody Melusky of Salinas; and two grandchildren.

Memorial services will be held Thursday at 11 a.m. at Carmel Presbyterian Church. Cremation will be at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, under the direction of the Paul Mortuary.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions go to Carmel Presbyterian Church, P.O. Box 846, Carmel, 93921.

Mary Jane Thayer

Mary lane Thayer, former manager of guest facilities for Bechtel Corp. at Pebble Beach, died on Feb. 19 at her Hacienda Carmel home. She was 67.

Thayer, who was born in Long Beach on Sept. 23,1924, was a longtime resident of Carmel, first moving there in 1948. In her earlier years she studied painting under Richard Lofton. After retiring from Bechtel in 1989, she moved to Hacienda Carmel.

Known as a gourmet chef, she was also in charge of the floral arrangement committee at the Hacienda. She was a member of the Carmel Foundation.

She is survived by two sons, Thomas of Mountain View and Michael of Carmel; a daughter, Lynne Knipp of Milan, Tenn.; her mother, Laura Hoffman of Carmel; a brother, Arthur Hoffman of Carmel; and five grandchildren.

Private family services have been held. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of cremation arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Hospice of the Central Coast, P.O. Box 2480, Monterey 93942.

Father Farrell's Wisdom

The road to good intentions

GILBERT KEITH Chesterton is a favorite of mine, a brilliant English writer, wit, philosopher and Christian apologist. He had a monumental brain but in practical matters, he had the short memory of the proverbial absentminded professor.

One morning, he left his home in Beaconsfield, Buckinghamshire, to give an evening lecture. At noon, he wired his wife, "I am at Bishop's Stortford in Hertfordshire. Where am I supposed to be?"

She wired back, "Home." Then she told her housekeeper that it would be easier to get him home from Bishop's Stortford than it would be to get him from there to where he was supposed to be.

If Chesterton was alive today, he no doubt would tell us that as good men and women, we need to come home to have moral principles and then set out in a better direction.

In many of our goals this would be easier than attempting to get from where we are to where we ought to go. In the early days of California, there was a well marked road—El Camino Real—the King's Highway. Keep us, Oh Lord, on the Royal Road marked so well by the principles of Rotary Service to others above self.

When I wrote this prayer, it seemed to make sense, but now I wonder. So Lord, please give it the meaning I intended, for we do know what road is paved with good intentions. Amen.

Grandparents support group

A support group for grandparents who are raising children has been formed at the Family Resource Center of Monterey County. Fees are based on a sliding scale. For more information call 394-4622.

Meals on Wheels needs volunteers

DRIVERS AND other volunteers are need to deliver 280 meals daily to shut-ins and the handicapped on the peninsula for Meals on Wheels.

According to Chuck Poland, a Carmel volunteer, 280 homes are served with three meals five days a week from Carmel Valley to Marina, but 25 volunteer drivers are needed daily to deliver those meals.

Each shut-in is delivered a breakfast, one cold meal (usually a sandwich, salad and juice), and one hot meal. He added that volunteers are also needed to prepare the meals at the Meals on Wheels facility at 700 Jewell Ave. in Pacific Grove.

The agency also serves lunch to 125 seniors at the facility every day. If you would like to volunteer to help out, contact Meals on Wheels at 375-4454.

Meals on Wheels is a non-profit organization.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

An ordinary kitchen table is on display, but not for sale, at a mail-order distribution center in Virginia Beach, Virginia. It's the same table which Lillian Katz used for packaging orders when she started her business in 1951 in her Mount Vernon, New York, home. She was 24, pregnant and used wedding-gift cash to start the Lillian Vernon Company. Still headquartered in Mount Vernon, the company employs about 125 people there and as many as 1,000 at its Virginia Beach distribution center. This year, at age 64, Lillian remained active as chairman and chief executive officer, doing some of the buying, reading all of the copy written for the catalogs, and adding her own touches.

Since 1948, Dixon Miller has lived in a stone cottage in the Pocono Mountains near Long Pond, Pennsylvania, collecting data for the U.S. Weather Bureau and serving as a forest-fire spotter. In spring and fall fire seasons, he daily climbs that 106 steps to the top of his observation tower. At age 80, that isn't his only exercise. He is an avid skier, and rides a unicycle to help keep in shape when there is no snow.

Renovations for Sunset Center get council OK

By JOHN DETRO

SUNSET CENTER'S star — read it structural renewal — was rising today.

Carmel City Council on Tuesday night approved the first step in wide-ranging improvements for the venerable facility. The vote was unanimous.

Council members thus gave Cultural Director Brian Donoghue and the Carmel Cultural Commission permission to invite submission of work histories and related materials by architects. The point was put forth in the Donoghue/Commission position paper on the local arts center: "...to select the best qualified architect or firm with whom to work on a plan for the remodeling and retrofitting of Sunset Center."

The renewal program, Commission Chairperson Linda Anderson told council members Tuesday night, "would allow Carmel to keep its cultural supremacy on the peninsula."

"That (initial step) isn't the proposal," Donoghue told this newspaper. "It allows us to develop the eventual proposal. We'll send out invitations (to architects). Commissioners then will form a blue ribbon selection committee."

When he presented the Sunset Center outline to council members and newswriters last week, Donoghue said this group might reach up to 20 members from different sectors — City Hall, business, arts presenters, general citizenry, so on. Then: "You're going to see community involvement like you've never seen before. Absolutely nothing will happen 'behind closed doors.' Hidden agendas would be a waste of time."

If all the suggested improvements were completed, he added, the price tag probably would exceed hundreds of thousands of dollars and hit $1 million or more.

The position paper was signed by him and the full commission — Anderson, David Benjamin, Ann Borden, Florence Mason, Robert Infelise, Antonia Verleye, Myles Williams. It said: "We need to provide optimum access and speedy turnaround, since the schedule is so full, at the lowest possible labor cost. In addition, as we become a more technically sophisticated society, the expectations of audiences and producers are likewise elevated. Even the simplest of community productions now needs and demands facilities that offer state of the art support."

And: "The physical plant was never designed or equipped to support correctly most of our current programs, including a first class county symphony and a nationally-renowned summer music festival. Acoustically, chamber groups including the Carmel Music Society, the Chamber Music Society and the Keyboard Series are not supported adequately, and there has been continuing mention of acoustical limitations in the press. Adjunct production areas...are either non-existent or grossly inadequate. All of our users are hindered in both production and additional earned income possibilities by physical limitations. Finally, there are safety needs for our current stage and support systems."

These elements were called "the primary issues to be addressed" by remodeling and retrofitting:

• Increase stage area with ample wing capacity — "This is the major inadequacy of the Sunset Center Theater. There is simply not enough stage space. This space limitation dramatically reduces the range of performances that are available to our community. Many of the nation's best opera, ballet and music theater touring companies cannot perform their standard repertory here. Instead, their work is reduced to accommodate the lack of space. Indeed, our own resident ensembles face the same problem....

"The stage wings...are virutally nonexistent. Again, this prevents numerous productions and staging possibilities. The annual opera presented by the Carmel Bach Festival is limited in size and scope because there is inadequate space to conceal large casts and set pieces for scene changes."

• Install counter-weight fly loft system — "The standard system found in most theaters allows for the rapid, efficient and safe movement of scenery, curtains/drops and lighting equipment into the stage loft

The Saints will march again as Dixieland Monterey kicks in gear

LOVERS OF traditional jazz today stood at one localized version of heaven's gate.

The 12th annual Dixieland Monterey Jazz Festival kicks off at 6 p.m. Friday, March 6, and runs through late Sunday afternoon at various downtown sites that all sit within walking distance of one another.

"We've been fortunate throughout the years to book the top Dixieland bands around," says Fest Chairman Ed Greco. "The 1992 group is no exception — they represent the best there is."

The musical lineup includes such much-praised aggregations as California's Chicago Six (Cardiff), High Sierra (Three Rivers), Janet Carroll and the Hollywood Jazz Catz (Los Angeles), Bobby Morris New Orleans Jazz Band (Las Vegas), Igor's Jazz Cowboys (Arizona), Black Dogs (Florida), Climax Jazz Band (Canada). Youth will be personified by Carmel High School's Carmel Marching and Chowder Society Jazz Band.

Cabarets will be held at DeAnza Ballroom and Portola Room (Doubletree Hotel), Monterey Bay Club and Three Flags (Marriott Hotel), Serra I and II Ballrooms and Steinbeck Forum (Monterey Conference Center), Wharfside, Red Snapper, Abalonetti's and Old Fisherman's Grotto restaurants (Fisherman's Wharf), California's First Theater.

The fest again will offer familiar highlights like the 10 a.m. Saturday jazz parade in downtown Monterey, jazz spiritual services on Sunday morning (public events), Jam Cabaret at Three Flags Cafe (open to public), nearly 300 combined hours of live jazz sets, Walking Path of Jazz (no shuttles required).

All-event badges cost $40 per person. Day badges: $15 each for Friday and Sunday, $25 Saturday. Special patron badges ($100 per) bring preferred seating and entry into private receptions.

Before the fest, badges may be bought at all local branches of Coast Federal Bank. During it, badges will be offered for sale in the Doubletree Hotel lobby.

"Scholarships from festival proceeds," Greco says, "are made available to high school music programs, area junior colleges, local youth symphony program and the local jazz society."

Special guest this year is vocalist Cheryl Stephens. She'll work with various bands at different times and locations.

Sunday's spiritual services will be at 9 a.m. in DeAnza Ballroom (Doubletree Hotel) and Serra I-II Ballrooms (Monterey Conference Center), and 10:30 a.m. at Steinbeck Forum (Conference Center). Featured bands: Night Blooming Jazzmen, High Sierra, Blue Street Jazz Band.

Additional details may be obtained by calling 373-3793. During the fest, the Dixieland Monterey Hot Line will be operative — 649-4511.

FORREST HELMICK (right), leader of Blue Street Jazz Band, with co-leader Dave Ruffner belt it out at last year's Dixieland Monterey. They'll return again to this year's event scheduled for March 6 through 8 in downtown Monterey.

Performance Carmel features popular dance troupe Pilobolus

WHEN CITY Cultural Director Brian Donoghue announced the Performance Carmel contemporary arts series last October, he promised bookings that were "groundbreakers who've been trained in the classics...established...not off the wall or faddish."

The man's word seems good as gold. On Saturday night, March 7, the series continues at Sunset Center with Pilobolus Dance Theater, major American dance company which offers one of the most popular and accessible repertoires in the field.

The presentation starts at eight o'clock. For ticket information — including group purchases — call 624-3996.

The Pilobolus crew, now launching worldwide tours from a home base in rural Connecticut, has been making dances for two decades. It includes five artistic directors (Robby Bennett, Alison Chase, Moses Pendleton, Michael Tracy, Jonathan Wolken) and six dancers (Adam Battelstein, Kent Lindemer, Rebecca Jung, John-Mario Sevilla, Sebastian Smeureanu, Jude Woodcock).

The local program will put forth both solo and group works, choreographed to music ranging from jazz drummer Jack DeJohnette to Brian Eno, David Byrne, Jean Luc Ponty, Ravel, Bartok, Shostakovich. There will be a new work commissioned in 1991 by American Dance Festival to mark Pilobolus' 20th anniversary.

PILOBOLUS DANCE Theater will offer both solo and group works on Saturday night, March 7, in Carmel's Sunset Center. (Lois Greenfield photo.)

The group was acclaimed immediately for its unusual mix of physicality and subtle invention. It's a self-sufficient organization with members choreographing, dancing, managing and publicizing their tours.

Bach fest principals respond; say its musicians are treated fairly

By JOHN DETRO

REACTING QUICKLY and with some emotion, leaders within Carmel Bach Festival Orchestra this week defended the parent organization against statements by Donn Schroder, president for American Federation of Musicians Local 616 in Monterey, that fest players should receive up to twice as much per diem pay.

The festival treats its musicians well, according to the reactions from Jesse Read and Fidel Sevilla. Principal bassoon and fest recital series programmer, Read was the orchestra's chief pay negotiator last year; Sevilla plays viola and manages the orchestra while also serving as lead negotiator for 1992.

They obviously were made aware of the Schroder-based article which ran in this newspaper last week. Read telephoned from Vancouver, British Columbia, and Sevilla from Reno.

Schroder said in an interview that Bach Festival musicians "should take a firmer stand" regarding pay questions. "They should want more money," he said. "At $52 per day (the sum negotiated last year but not yet ratified) they might as well work for McDonald's...I hope they'll allow me a leadership role (at 1992 pay talks). I've done a fair amount of negotiating."

Schroder added that Bach Festival players "wouldn't be caught dead working for that ($52 per diem) in their home towns. Some festivals pay $100 a day. And, yes,

Music Corner

By Nathalie Plotkin

Poetic interpretation

PIANIST NELSON Freire was heard in recital Sunday afternoon in Carmel's Sunset Center Theater, performing under the auspices of the Keyboard Artist Series.

Three years have elapsed since Freire last performed here and the passage of time has mellowed him into a musician whose interpretive stance is that of a poet.

The Mozart "Sonata in A Major" K 331 is one that every student has played at least one part of. The opening theme is quoted in every first year piano book and the joyous "Alla Turca" finale probably has been arranged for every possible instrument or combination thereof. More advanced students have played all three movements.

Freire's Mozart is cool and elegant. That ubiquitous theme was traversed simply and gracefully and, in the ensuing variations, the dynamic coloring was exactly appropriate and pleasing to listen to. The material was expounded gently and in carefully drawn proportions.

The Minuet with its quasi-operatic flavor and vocal frills, was more dramatically projected though always within the scope of the dance form. The Trio displayed sympathetic musical depths, while the Rondo Alla Turca was delivered with elegant restraint and fleet legato finger work. It was quite an object lesson to everyone who has ever studied it.

Proceeding to the Cesar Franck "Prelude, Chorale and Fugue" composed almost 100 years later than the Mozart Sonata, we heard a virtuoso performance of a work which attempts to create organ-like sonorities on the piano. Franck, himself was a famed virtuoso on both instruments. He didn't hesitate to make monumental demands on his protagonist. One heard hazy, impressionistic musings, contemplative episodes, passages of dramatic brilliance and a massively impressive ending.

The second half of the program was a widely varied selection of shorter works. In selections from Prokofiev "Visions Fugitives" and the march from "Love of Three Oranges," Freire ranged from fragile Debussyesque murmurings and twitters to thundering martial rhythmed dissonance.

Schumann's "Scenes from Childhood" seems to have made the Top 10 this season and we heard it here only five weeks ago. Happily, both performances were very fine. Freire brought his poetic sensibilities to bear on these charming romantic vignettes, with highly satisfactory musical results. The expressive values of his playing, particularly in the more contemplative miniatures were worked out in infinitely delicate gradations of tone.

The Chopin "Barcarolle" Op. 60 and the "Ballade in F Minor" Op. 52 were colorful and strongly outlined. There was a more dramatic, emphatic approach to the technical fireworks and a greater feeling of involvement with the drama inherent in the music.

In response to the enthusiastic applause, Freire played three encores, the "Dance of the Happy Spirits" by Gluck, a selection from "Prolo de Bebe" by Villalobos, and the "Tango" by Albeniz in a lovely Chopinesque transcription by Godowsky.

Afterthought: Wouldn't it be possible for our local impresarios to establish a program clearing house so that we are not inundated with duplications like the Schumann "Scenes from Childhood" and the Prokofiev "Piano Sonata No. 7?" These are fine works, but the repertoire is so vast and our opportunities to hear fine live performances so limited, that one wishes to somehow avoid this situation.

Festival principals respond

that rate would be perfectly reasonable for Carmel Bach Festival."

Read said the proposed salary hike went from $46 to the $52 — and that "Donn Schroder didn't mention that 80 percent of the musicians will get an extra $150 (apiece) for playing in the Chamber Music Series and the brass music events in the (Sunset Center) tower before concerts. And the players all get free housing. It would be bad and wrong for the festival to be portrayed as miserly. We bargained hard and fairly, and got some good benefits."

Read said he quit the negotiating committee over basic disagreement with Schroder. "What greedy person would ask for twice as much (money) in a recession?" he added Monday.

Informed of Read's statement, Schroder said Monday afternoon: "I forgot to mention (the $150-per pay element). It was an oversight. There was no particular purpose or motive. It was a simple oversight." He called his characterization of the basic per diem's rise ("$1 per day — up to $52 per person per day") a matter of "miscommunication" between interviewer and interviewee.

Orchestra members, Sevilla said, "have a great love for Carmel Bach Festival. Please note that the festival spends $86,000 a year on housing musicians. If players want to get their own housing, they receive an allowance of $20 per day. And then there's the Festival Hospitality Committee."

That committee, the 27-year fest veteran went on, "gives us wonderful (food) spreads throughout rehearsals and after concerts. And there are the parties which allow us to associate with local residents and music-lovers from outside the immediate area. The festival amounts to a working vacation for us."

He said Schroder was sending out ballots to "all 50 orchestra members" toward ratification of the pay rates negotiated last year. "I expect that it (ratification) will happen in an orderly manner" and "probably won't take more than two or three weeks."

Sevilla said the new negotiating group would be formed as soon as musicians arrive for rehearsals — normally about 10 days before the festival begins. The 1992 fest dates: July 13-Aug. 2.

"Yes," he added, "Donn Schroder will be a negotiator. He has a voice, but no vote. There's no point in making a fuller statement right now. There will be plenty of time to have discussions."

Read noted that, along with lodging, the festival gives musicians a travel allowance (30 cents per mile within California). And: "The person quoted (in the former article) — Donn Schroder — was not an official spokesperson for the Bach Festival musicians."

For a short while this week, Bach festival directors considered issuing a response to Schroder. "We have a good relationship with the musicians," fest Executive Director Nana Faridany said on Tuesday. "We've decided that what they say will be the statement that is made."

Sunset Center remodeling

above. Currently our antiquated system does not afford the flying out of the equipment...but rather it 'dead hangs,' causing tremendous inefficiency and inflexibility in production...Our current system...is potentially dangerous to both performers and technical staff. It must be remedied regardless of any other retrofit considerations."

• Modernize lighting system — "Includes updating and increasing our inventory of lighting instruments, the acquisition of a computerized lighting control board, increasing dimmer capacity, and the enhancement of circuited lighting positions."

• Modernize sound system and acoustical enhancement — "Includes equipment for sound production and reinforcement, acoustical analysis of the house, installation of sound baffles if needed, and the installation of a permanent sound and lighting control position in the house."

• Improve dressing room facilities — "We lack sufficient dressing rooms and cannot meet contractual demands outlining usual accomodation for guest artists."

• Create concession and reception areas — "Our current system of using classrooms at Sunset Center for concessions is unwieldy and awkward. Our audience's access to concessions and receptions is poor and this directly inhibits additional earned income....An appealing space for receptions would also create more demand on other rental rooms, as requested by numerous potential renters."

• Inprove restrooms — "Restroom facilities for both audience and performers need to be relocated, and this is sensible, perhaps inevitable, within the context of other physical changes."

• Redesign theater lobby and entrance — "...With special emphasis on the pedestrian — a simple, elegant and permanent focal point suitable for such outdoor presentations as (Carmel's) 75th birthday celebration."

• Create a flexible performance/rehearsal room — "Additional space needs to be created to house smaller, more intimate programs that demand less technical support than the main theater provides. This would substantially increase the number of demands we could meet, by situating events in the most appropriate venue, and not tying up the theater unnecessarily. This space would also serve to accommodate rehearsal schedules."

By Mac McDonald

What recession?

THERE'S AN old saying that movie houses and bars get their highest use during times of depression; people either want to escape into celluloid dreams or alcohol-fueled fantasies. . .or both.

Even in these recessionary times local movie theaters appear to be doing quite well, thank you, bars continue to ply their trade, and even the music scene has seen a surprising rejuvenation after a fallow period in the mid to late '80s.

AYO ADEYEMI

Local clubs are increasingly booking nationally known talent and even a few independent promoters are getting in the act, booking big-name acts in whatever local venue they can find (Paul Horn's show at the Monterey Conference Center comes to mind). Clubs like Doc Ricketts' Lab, The New Boiler Room, Portofino Cafe, Shanty Malone's, even Sharkey's and Monterey Brewing Company on occasion, bring in name talent. That list doesn't include such places as the Hyatt Regency; Hidden Valley, Santa Catalina School, Mission Ranch Barn and other non-nightclub venues that have featured well-known performers in the past year.

But our musical rejuvenation can also be traced to the effects of the recession. Performers are looking to virtually any town, and any venue to get work, perhaps even at reduced rates. That's why you see bands that used to fill baseball stadiums playing in small clubs, among them, Kansas, Blue Oyster Cult, Flock of Seagulls, Jefferson Starship and the like.

PARSONS GREEN

In just the past week here on the peninsula you could have heard the likes of Norton Buffalo, the Dynatones, Robben Ford, The Sundogs, Spider John Koerner, and Molly Hatchett. OK, granted, not exactly household names, but this is all in one week's time. A few years ago we would have been lucky to have just one of those names perform here on the peninsula in a single week.

There are, of course a few pitfalls to all this wealth of talent. We could burn ourselves out, not only financially and physically, but emotionally. You can't do Mardi Gras every week and live to tell tales, at least not coherently.

With all that said, the upcoming week is chock full of events, from jazz to rock to dance to African drumming. There's an appearance by the near-legendary New Riders of the Purple Sage at Shanty Malone's; former Byrd and Flying Burrito Brother Gene Parsons (with Meridian Green) at Portofino Cafe; African drummer Ayo Adeyemi, also at Shanty Malone's; blues slide guitarist Roy Rogers at Doc Ricketts'; jazz vocalist Mose Allison at Hidden Valley; Dixieland Monterey at several venues in downtown Monterey; even the renowned avant garde dance troupe Pilobolus at Carmel's Sunset Center.

The most intriguing booking has to be the appearance of Adeyemi at 9 p.m. Friday, March 6 at Shanty Malone's. The African drum master was trained as a Yoruba priest in his native Nigeria; Yoruba wisdom regards drumming to be as important and natural as your heartbeat, a "conversation between your body and your spirit, a source of renewal."

Ayo Adeyemi performed for years with the drum master Babatunde Olatunji (who recently played on Mickey Hart's Grammy-winning Planet Drum recording), as well as playing with such rock stars as Keith Richards, Carlos Santana and Michael Jackson. He'll be bringing in Arlo Zues on bass, Vinnie Caggiano on guitar, Kandido Obajimi on percussion (he's played with Afro-beat superstars Fela and King Sunny Ade), and Rick Walker on traps.

The evening will begin with a traditional Yoruba processional and segue into pulsing electric versions of African music. Ayo will also be conducting a drum clinic in Carmel Valley on March 7 (call 373-1110 for more information on that event).

Tickets for Ayo Adeyemi's show are $9 at the door. Call 626-0604 for reservations (dinner is served at Shanty's until 9).

The following night (Saturday, March 7), Mary McCaslin opens for The New Riders of the Purple Sage, a band that first started as a musical alliance between John "Marmaduke" Dawson and Greatful Dead members Jerry Garcia, Phil Lesh, Mickey Hart and David Nelson. While the membership has changed over the years (Greatful Dead members went on to bigger things), Marmaduke remains the constant.

The band is perhaps best known for its million-selling The Adventures of Panama Red in 1973-74, although their 1971 self-titled debut release is near and dear to country-folk-rock fans of all persuasions. In fact it's a classic. These guys are the original "psychedelic cowboy band."

The show starts at 9; $10 cover at the door; full menu served from 5 p.m.

True blues fans should not miss the appearance by Roy Rogers & the Delta Rhythm Kings at Doc Ricketts' on Wednesday, March 11. Rogers, a phenomenal Delta blues slide guitar player, produced as well as performed on the last two John Lee Hooker's acclaimed recordings, The Healer and Mr. Lucky, winning Grammies for his work. But it's with his own band that I believe he really shines. Just your basic guitar-bass-drums blues band configuration, Rogers lets his slide guitar do all the talking, from slow, deeply felt ballads to rip-snorting Chicago-style slide blues. I saw him get two standing ovations at a Paul Masson summer event a couple of years back, a trick that only a few performers can muster at the laid-back venue. If you like primo slide guitar, this is the place to be.

Mose Allison to swing at Hidden Valley show

FRIDAY, MARCH 6, Hidden Valley's Popular "Friday's at 8" concert series presents, from New York, Mose Allison and his trio.

Mose Allison is a classic. "During the early sixties his singing had a profound effect on an entire generation of English rock musicians. . . his piano style defies description, both because it cuts across the boundaries that conventionally separate mainstream jazz, the avant-garde, blues and swing, and because it is in a continuing process of evolution." The New York Times.

MOSE ALLISON

Mose has recorded over 20 albums as a leader (plus numerous reissues), for prestige, Columbia, Atlantic, and Blue Note. He has performed all over the U.S., Canada, Europe, and Australia. He has written one hundred songs, which have been recorded by such musicians as: The Who, The Clash, The Yardbirds, Bonnie Rait, Van Morrison and others.

His album, Lessons In Living, was nominated for a Grammy in 1983, and Ever Since the World Ended, on Blue Note, was nominated for Best Jazz Album in 1988, by the New York Music Awards and for a Grammy in 1989.

Rolling Stone magazine says, "For over 30 years, this premier songwriter, singer and pianist has peppered his idiosyncratic blend of jazz and blues with mordant wit and unflinching honesty."

Tickets to the performance are $12.50 and will be available at the door. The box opens at 7:30, show starts at 8 p.m. You are welcome to bring your wine.

The Hidden Valley theater is located 11.2 miles east of Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Road. Proceeds benefit the Youth Education Programs at Hidden Valley Music Seminars. For more information call 659-3115.

Eyvind Earle opens exhibit March 7 at Reid Galleries

IN 1937 at the age of 21, Eyvind Earle rode his bicycle across the U.S. on $31 in 42 days and painted 42 watercolors. Over the next 55 years he has created a great body of work of steadily increasing power, delicacy, precision and vivid imagery. Today at the peak of his creative energy, he is honored throughout the world by museums, art galleries and collectors.

His first show in New York 55-years ago was not his artistic beginning. Earle was already a seasoned artist, having had his first one-man show in Ascain, France, at the age of fourteen.

And now, after more than 50 one-man shows across the United States, Eyvind Earle's unique works will be featured in a one-man show at Reid Galleries in the Barnyard, Carmel from March 7 through April 7, with a champagne reception to be held March 7 from 4 to 9 p.m. The artist will be present, signing his recent books, The Complete Graphics and Selected Poems and Writings 1940-1990 and his autobiography, Horizon Bound on a Bicycle.

The almost larger-than-life history of Eyvind Earle, like his art, is filled with elongated shadows, bright colors and unending horizons.

Eyvind Earle's unique style in graphics, the result of years of silk-screen printing and experimenting on his own, and the fact that he himself executes all the color separations, has earned him the highest praise from collectors and critics alike.

The comprehensive collection of work on exhibit at Reid Galleries will include oils, watercolors, etchings, rare bronzes and the largest selection of Eyvind Earle's serigraphs in the world today. For further information call 624-4243.

UPCOMING EVENTS with a musical bent on the Monterey Peninsula and outlying areas:

• Shanty Malone's also has upcoming: ska with Sensible Shoes on March 14, with Carmel rockers Still Time opening; reggae with Uprising on March 20; Cajun swamp boogie with The Sundogs on March 27; and acoustic folk-rock with City Folk on March 28.

• At Doc Ricketts' Lab on Cannery Row: Roy Rogers & the Delta Rhythm Kings play Wednesday, March 11 (slide guitar master Rogers played guitar and produced John Lee Hooker's last two albums); Johnny "Clyde" Copeland kicks into gear March 16; and zydeco hotshots Terrance Simien & The Mallet Playboys plays Wednesday, March 25. Slated for April are Debbie Davies (April 6), Clarence "Gatemouth" Brown, Marcia Ball, and John Mayall (latter three not confirmed yet).

Local bands performing over the next week include Lovers & Strangers Thursday, March 5; The Young Presidents, Friday and Saturday, March 6-7; Lazy Hurricanes, Sunday, March 8 (after the Afternoon Jazz Series); Terry Hanck & the Soulrockers, Monday and Tuesday, March 9-10; The Ace Hill Trio CD release party on Thursday, Match 12. The Directors play the weekend of March 13-14.

Info on all shows can be had by calling 649-4241.

• Portofino Cafe in PG will feature, at 8 p.m. Friday, March 6, former Byrd and Burrito Brother Gene Parsons and Meridian Green in a performance billed as Parsons Green, music roted in country, folk and bluegrass with touches of rock and World Beat rhythms. Parsons Green has a critically praised recording, Birds of a Feather on Sierra Records. Special guest for the evening will be Mike Beck, a local boy who moved to Montana to live the life of a professional cowboy. His first solo recording, Life of a Buckeroo, has just been released on Cowboy Heaven Records.

Tickets are $7 in advance, $8 at the door

For reservations or further information about concerts at Portofino, call 373-7379.

• Jonah and the Whale Watchers play The Club of Monterey on Thursday, March 5 and every Thursday until further notice. The Club is starting to draw a few more reggae fans on Thursday nights as people come to realize the nightclub isn't as bad as it's made out to be. Joe Bob says check it out.

For more info on the band and its availability, call Koko at 625-5260.

• Upcoming shows at The Catalyst in Santa Cruz include: Tuck & Patti (March 4); Dollar Night with Sister Double Happiness, Hobo and Sextants (March 5); Little Women and New Potato Caboose (March 6); Doors Hotel (March 7); Dollar Night with Spang-a-lang (March 12); Pete Escovedo (March 13); Dave Mason Band (March 14); Square Roots (March 17); Beat Farmers (March 20); John Lee Hooker (March 21); Ferron (March 22); Chris Cain Band (March 26 - Dollar Night); Roy Rogers & the Delta Rhythm Kings (March 27); Jefferson Starship (March 28) and Ice-T (March 31 — a 16-and-over show at 8 p.m.).

Tickets are available at all BASS/TM outlets (including The Wherehouse on Lighthouse Avenue in New Monterey and at The Crossroads). Info for Catalyst shows can be had by calling 423-1336. The Catalyst is located at 1011 Pacific Ave. in downtown Santa Cruz.

Jazz Tides

Sadness

SAD STUFF: It isn't all rainbows and cuddly bunny toys here on Planet Earth.

Some weeks ago, music industry PR pro Gretchen Horton announced she would oversee development of a Marin County research site that took Rutgers University's Jazz Studies Institute as a working model. She said the center would house the former Bay Area Music Archives as well as the major collections of late jazz critics Ralph Gleason, John Wasserman, Conrad Silvert.

This springtime was seen as the opening season. During an exclusive telephone interview, Gretchen said the Bay Area Music Awards show (Bammies) pledged 1992 profits to her project. California Arts Council and the Marin Arts Council also committed funds.

Well, her voice shook when she called a few days ago. "I won't be able to go ahead with the plans," Gretchen said. "I was diagnosed about a year ago as having multiple sclerosis. I thought I could keep working just enough, but I find myself exhausted. There's too much responsibility. It's all too big, too open-ended. This's a totally personal decision, arrived at after long conversations with (jazz album producer) Orrin (Keepnews) and Jean Gleason (Ralph's widow)."

Gretchen said the Bammies people, told of her decision, already have earmarked that money for the Bill Graham Foundation. "Roger Clark (rock 'n' roll vocalist) now considers whether he'll carry on with the project. I'll do some chores on the jazz elements, and advise whoever gets it together. And I'll let you know what happens with Roger's decision and all the rest."

Meanwhile, the local jazz community today mourns one of this music's most charming fans. Vivian Brunetta Jackson died last week at Salinas Valley Memorial Hospital. She was always supportive of her husband (Monterey Jazz Festival trustee and fine musician Bill Jackson), and his player pals. I'll remember her bright wit and ever-sincere affection. Wonderful lady.

Memorial services were held at Seaside's Oldemeyer Center. The Whitehurst Muller Funeral Chapel handled cremation; inurnment was in Garden of Memories Cemetery. Memorial contributions may be sent to American Diabetes Association.

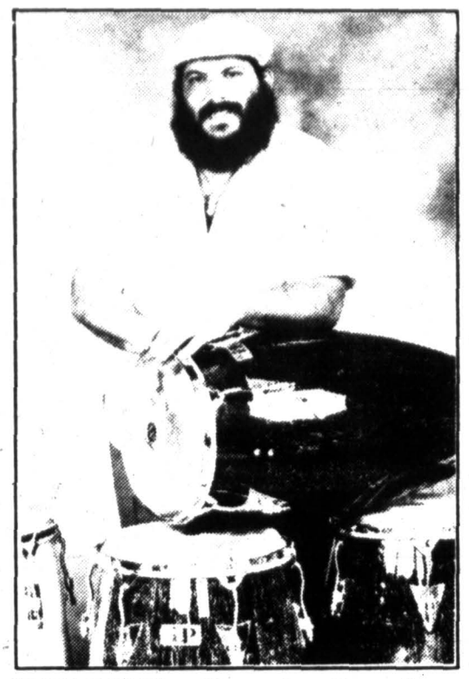
THREE FORMER San Francisco '49ers say they'll open their brand new San Jose venue — Club Jazz in the downtown Gold Tower Building — on March 13. That word comes from Keena Turner, Ronnie Lott and Eric Wright. First booking: soprano saxist George Howard.

The room has been expanded to 350 seats. In future, they'll offer such stars as Bobby Hutcherson, Jimmy Smith, Les McCann.

Early on, having checked out her work personally, the men contracted with Los Gatos portrait artist Bruni Sablan to display 10 of her works at the upscale space. Shown will be Sablan depictions of Miles Davis, Phil Woods, Bud Powell with Charles Mingus, Nat Cole, Stan Getz, Charlie Parker, Benny Goodman, Carmen McRae, Sarah Vaughan, Emily Remler.

Bruni's shows have won many friends hereabouts. The Jazz Masters Series now numbers some 150 portraits. Her gallery's hours are 1-6 p.m. daily — and collectors may arrange private viewings by calling 1-395-9100.



THE MAN— Poncho Sanchez and his Latin jazz crew will play Kuumbwa Jazz Center on Monday night (3/9).

Paintings by Bruni hang in the collections of Dizzy Gillespie, jazz critic Leonard Feather, international race car driver Willy Ribbs, vocalist Roberta Flack, Chan Parker (writer and widow of Bird).

DOC RICKETTS' Lab on Cannery Row has hot items coming up. For instance, the Sunday Afternoon Jazz Series (3/8) will spotlight alto saxist John Handy as guest artist. Starts at two; $3 per at the door. Reedman John Cortes books this series and fronts the Sunday house quartet.

San Francisco's Handy worked with Charles Mingus. His own groups have played Monterey Jazz Festival over a span of many years — and one Handy album (Hard Work) ran up unusually high sales totals. His music's rooted deeply in the blues; he always swings. 'Nuf said.

JOHN HANDY

On Thursday evening, March 12, the spot will hold a CD Release Party for popular jazz keyboardist Ace Hill. It's 8:30 till closing. No cover.

Also: Roy Rogers and the Delta Rhythm Kings (Wednesday 3/11), Johnny Clyde Copeland (Monday 3/16), Terrance Simien and the Mallet Playboys (Wednesday 3/25).

THE GREAT bluesman Mose Allison will sing and display his piano genius on Friday night (3/6) in the Hidden Valley Music Series. Songs written by Mose display biting wit and deep feeling for the social underdog. He'll work with a bassist and drummer.

Tickets cost $12.50 and may be bought when the box office opens at 7:30. First set starts half an hour later. Those who enjoy wine are invited to bring their own.

Get ready. The sizzling and yet tuneful Poncho

EVEN PAT Buchanan and his fellow troglodytes must know by now that Clint Eastwood loves jazz. Clint's films have celebrated Bird Parker, Thelonious Monk, superb soundtrack players.

So now the Lionel Hampton/Chevron Jazz Festival of Moscow (Idaho) has welcomed Eastwood into its Hall of Fame. He said on that warm occasion: "I always felt sorry for young people who didn't grow up in the swinging generation." An estimated 5,000 listeners heard those words.

AND THE SECRETS? READ ON...
Rita Firestone Seger's book The Essence of Being a Woman Entrepeneur is now on the shelves of The Thunderbird and Pilgrim's Way Bookstore.
Finally she tells the secrets of her success and how to make money and still be direct, honest and skilled.
If you're interested in being in a group to support financial success in your life, call 625-3781.
For mail orders on this dynamic book, write Box 103, Carmel, CA 93921. $12.95 + tax and shipping.

CARMEL BOOK EMPORIUM - This fine bookshop emphasizes high quality and 60 sections (ultimately 100) and a big stone fireplace round which folks may browse contentedly. Management promises computerized ordering that assures "the best possible turnaround time."

Special attention is given to mysteries, creative writing, the lively arts - and of course the tops in contemporary fiction. Videos include such special contexts as Oscar-winning Best Pictures over the past 20 years. And PBS productions. And music tapes and CDs (local players too). Before long, Carmel Book Emporium will add a cafe - perfect meeting spot.

On Lobos Lane in The Crossroads (a few steps from Safeway). Open 10-6 Sunday/Thursday; 10-8 Friday/Saturday. 626-BOOK.

EDUCATIONAL STUFF , INC. - It's true. Literally thousands of learning tools for youngsters from infancy to middle school age.

Developmental toys, all kinds of books, science materials, flash cards, art supplies, puzzles, teaching aids, rewards, and so on.

Ex-teacher Barbara Vantress has had the facinating spot for 11 years. Her commitments inspire the daily workways of all staff members - " each is trained to consult and recommend," says Barbara.

"Now's the perfect time to find the right projects and support materials. Prices are low to moderate - and customers always get personalized service with full product guarantees."

If you'd like one of the bright no-cost Educational Stuff catalogues, call 1-422-5044. Address: 908-1/2 South Main in Salinas. Packed with examples of excellence in research, design, overall purpose.

MONTEREY BAY COFFEEHOUSE BOOKSHOP - Opened by Estelle Cimino in November 1991, this downtown spot (472 Alvarado St.) has an airy and bright atmosphere that seems made for book lovers. "I've had a passion for books ever since I was a child," Estelle comments. Her caring can be seen in the full children's section, Arts, Self-Help, Business, Spirituality — dozens of well-stocked categories. And the audio department delights with best-sellers read by excellent performers. "I really believe people come into a bookstore on a quest," she continues. "It's gratifying to be able to help our customers find the treasures they are seeking." The comfy coffee shop serves light lunches and desserts in addition to a fine array of espresso drinks. For-sale music CD's and cassettes provide a soothing and relaxing background. Computerized ordering. Magazines galore. Ample parking in rear lot. Hours: 10-9 Monday/Thursday; 10-10:30 Friday, Saturday. And noon-6 Sunday. 647-1822.

SIERRA CLUB BOOKSHOP - It's the 100th anniversary of this visionary conservation group. The Carmel shop offers Sierra Club titles, fine guidebooks, children's books, wondrous nature lore. Also greeting cards and those radiant Sierra Club calendars. Persons interested in planned outings and/or the organization's vital, planet-respecting work will find membership materials...the how and certainly the why. On Ocean between Dolores and San Carlos. 12:30 - 4:30 Monday through Saturday. 624-8032

Sure principles

The Essence of Being a Woman Entrepeneur by Rita Firestone Seger. Orion Publishing. $12.95 paperback. 127 pages.

In person, successful Carmel businesswoman and writer Rita Firestone Seger combines charm, quick wit and practicality. Her long-awaited book puts forth the same qualities.

RITA FIRESTONE SEGER

One matter that must be addressed immediately: she deals with sure principles which will benefit male readers as well as ambitious members of the distaff side.

It's important too that Rita Firestone Seger learned the subject not only intellectually, but also through daily experience within the entire process. From front cover to back, there's not a false note or jot of fuzzy, merely wishful thinking.

The Introduction shares insights into the impetus for this successful work formula. It will prove inspirational to woman (and men) who may feel helpless in their lives. Here's how they can overcome adversity, create meaningful work, make money. (Miss Seger believes that success = money = power = freedom.)

The book was written while Miss Seger was counseling women. It will offer much to women of any age — the young woman out of college, the woman who's tired of working for someone else, and the older woman seeking new adventure.

Goal: to earn money and gain a real inner/outer independence in the world. Considered are such topics as self-confrontation, breakdowns and solutions, stereotypes, how to feel successful, tunnel vision and focus, research, education, business identity, image, selling, "the new practical indoctrination," so on. The writer's a powerful woman; she has written a powerful book.

Unsolicited recommendations from readers include these words by a woman named Beth: "Thank you, Rita, for the inspiration to transform a longtime dream of starting my own business into a reality and a necessity. I recommend this book to anyone who wants to go beyond visualization...into the creation and manifestation of full potential."

And Peter Roark: "I found Rita's book very helpful. It also speaks to men, and it reminded me of my own weaknesses and areas I need to work on. It's an extremely valuable presentation for anyone who wishes to make money and feel good about it."

FUTURE FILE: The celebrated gardener, author and photographer Elizabeth Murray will speak on Gardens Real and Imagined on March 16 at 7:30 p.m. in Santa Catalina School's Performing Arts Center.

It's a no-cost offering, but reservations are required. Simply call 655-9310.

She will talk about the making of gardens, gardens as fine art, some inspirational sources for gardens, environmental and spiritual through gardens. The slide-lecture will be illustrated with photographs of wondrous gardens in the village of Varengeville Sur-Mer on the Normandy coast of France—where she lived from May till October last year.

Elsewhere, Pulitzer poet Galway Kinnell will read from his work at 8 p.m. Friday, March 13, in Sunset Center's Carpenter Hall. Costs: $8 per, couples $15, students $5.

Kinnell's appearance is co-sponsored by Robinson Jeffers Tor House Foundation and Monterey Peninsula College English Department. It's partially funded by a grant from the County Cultural Council.

Barbara Murphy of Pacific Grove's Portofino Cafe will present a program entitled Spirit of the Drum next week (Wednesday night 3/11). David Schiffman from Big Sur plans to offer both poetry and drumming. Starts at eight o'clock; $3 per at the door.

The same evening, Pilgrim's Way Bookstore in downtown Carmel will spotlight Dr. Rick Moss as part of its regular lecture series. Program notes say: "Rick is founder of pre-cognitive re-education...He will focus on the false beliefs and negative thought patterns that hold us in fear, separation and judgment in our intimate relationships."

Start time of 7 p.m. Donation: $5 per at the door.

Aquarium opens spectacular jellyfish exhibit

JELLYFISH ARE a lot more than stinging balls of slime.

Among the most delicate and beautiful creatures on Earth, they'll be the stars of the show when the special exhibition "Planet of the Jellies" opens at the Monterey Bay Aquarium. The largest exhibition ever presented of these graceful, opalescent animals, "Planet of the Jellies" will be featured from March 8 to Sept. 7, 1993.

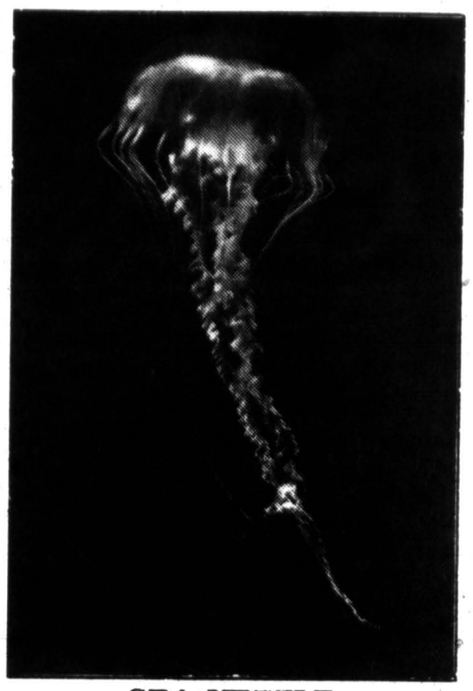
"'Planet of the Jellies' gives us a unique opportunity to showcase some extraordinary animals that few people have seen before. As we tell their story, we'll also be talking about how human activities are threatening their ocean home," said aquarium executive director Julie Packard.

Animals in the exhibition include comb jellies that shine with flashing bands of rainbow light as they swim; upside-down jellies that pulse on the bottom of tropical seas; the peach-blossom jelly that lives an almost invisible life in freshwater lakes around the world; and the bell jelly, transparent and crystalline except for 160 bright-red eye-spots near its waving tentacles.

A total of 17 jelly species, many being presented for the first time at an aquarium, will be included in this one-of-a-kind special exhibition. Extensive work by aquarium husbandry staff has made it possible to rear many of the jellies outside the wild and to create exhibits that can accommodate these fragile animals.

The exhibit is designed to take visitors on a tour of an unfamiliar world: the Planet of the Jellies. As they explore the exhibit, stopping at "traveler's information bureaus," reading "guidebooks" and meeting the planet's unusual inhabitants, they'll discover that our own planet Earth, where oceans cover two-thirds of the surface, truly deserves to be called the Planet of the Jellies.

There will be opportunities to learn how jellies travel through the world's oceans, how their feared stinging tentacles work, why some species are dangerous to people, and even to discover the secrets of how jellies feed and reproduce. (It's not as easy as it might seem!)



SEA NETTLE

"Planet of the Jellies" is free with regular aquarium admission of $9.75 for adults, $7.25 for students, seniors and active-duty military, and $4.50 for children ages 3 to 12 and people with disabilities.

The aquarium is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily (except Christmas). Summer and holiday hours are 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Advance tickets are available by calling the aquarium at 648-4888. Many Monterey Peninsula hotels also sell advance tickets to their guests.

Ample public parking for the aquarium is available at the nearby Cannery Row parking garage. Beginning April 11, shuttle bus service will link the aquarium and Cannery Row with downtown Monterey and the waterfront. Buses will run from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily for two weeks during Easter; weekends through Memorial Day; and daily through Labor Day.

For additional information, call 648-4888.

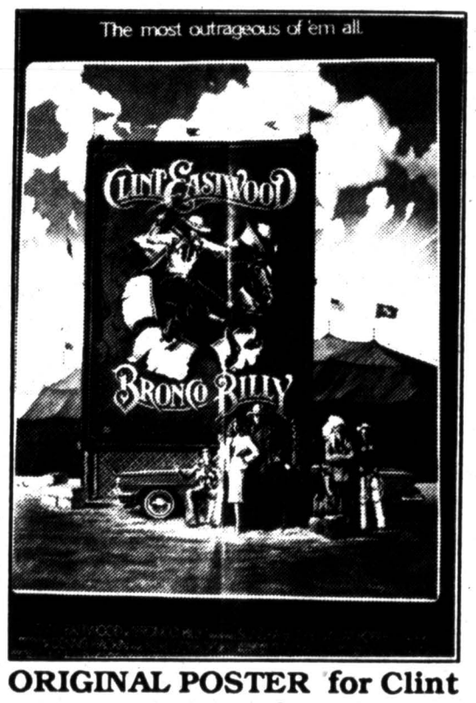
Clint Eastwood will attend screening of his Bronco Billy

ACTOR-DIRECTOR Clint Eastwood will appear in person to open a screening of his 1980 film Bronco Billy at 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 10 at the Sunset Center Theater in Carmel.

The film is part of the Second Tuesday Film Festival put on by the city. Admission is only $2.50. Doors open at 7.



ORIGINAL POSTER for Clint Eastwood's 1980 film, Bronco Billy.

The comedy, directed by Eastwood and also starring Sondra Locke and Scatman Crothers, is about a down-on-its luck Wild West Show traveling the backroads of America. It's about a New Jersey shoe salesman who takes over the show and the moniker "Bronco Billy." Along the way they encounter a runaway heiress, a murder plot that isn't, and a bunch of greedy Eastern sophisticates. The film has been praised as one of Eastwood's better directorial efforts and his best comedy.

Eastwood will appear before the film screens to make some brief comments and to discuss the making of the film. For information, call 624-3996.

PG Art Center opens new show with reception on March 6th

VARIETY AND radiance were the bywords as Pacific Grove Art Center readied its next opening reception "for artists, members and friends" on Friday, March 6, from 7-9 p.m.

These exhibits will continue through April 10:

• Gardens Real and Imagined in the David Henry Gill Gallery. The paintings, photographs and "garden icons" by Elizabeth Murray make up an environmental art presentation.

From Carmel, Murray describes herself as "a garden artist who has a passion for flowers, nature and art." In 1985-86 she helped restore Monet's original garden in Giverny, France, into a beautiful public garden visited by 300,000 people annually.

• Women's Room — The Wallflower Project installation by Suzanne T. Meehan (Richmond) and Patricia Rede (Oakland).

• Elmarie Dyke Gallery — Paintings by Peggy Wynne Borgman.

• Photography Gallery — works by Paulette Weston.

• Hall Gallery — Watercolors and mixed media pieces by Mary Gamble.

On Stage

The Devil's Disciple

George Bernard Shaw only wrote one play about the American Revolution — his wonderful encounter between the New England Puritans and the British military in The Devil's Disciple

The Devil's Disciple is the Staff Players Repertory Company's fourth in a season of political plays. It is an hilarious look at how troubled times reveal to each of us one's real calling. Shaw takes on both judgmental Colonists and the British War Office impartially. The wit and insight of this famous Irish playwright will delight audiences of all ages and persuasions.

A number of faces, new and old, will fill the Indoor Forest Stage: Louise Nachman, Ellis Allbee, Suzanne Crain, Steve Harris, Ivan Flansburg, Nancy Lee Methenitis and Keith Decker will be joined by Karner Benjamin, Kit McKinney Rebecca Meyer, Tom Burns, Peter Hill, George Larsen and Ed Bodanske. Directed by Marcia Gambrell Hovick, costumes by Loel B. Shuler, set and light design by Charles Houghton.

The Devil's Disciple will open March 13, with two previews March 11 and 12, playing Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturday's at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2:30 through April 5. For reservations call the Indoor Forest Theatre at 624-1531.

Tales of the Lost Formicans

Monterey Peninsula College Drama Department presents Tales of the Lost Formicans, March 6 through 22 at Cherry Hall in Carmel.

Conrad Selvig directs this Constance Congdon play, which offers an irreverent look at contemporary suburbia through the eyes of extra-terrestrials.

Performances are at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, 7 p.m. Sundays.

Tickets are $8 for general admission, $6 for students/military/ senior citizens. For information, call 646-9478.

Bouncers

GroveMont's Monterey Playhouse will continue its 1992 Theater season with the John Godber comedy Bouncers through March 14.

The production is rated "R" and will run Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m.; seating opens one-half hour before showtime, with a wide variety of desserts, beer, wine and soft drinks available before the show and at intermission.

GroveMont's Monterey Playhouse is located at 425 Washington (just off Franklin) in downtown Monterey.

The production is directed by John Rousseau. John is artist-in-residence and technical director of GroveMont Theater.

Appearing in multiple roles in Bouncers is local favorite John Farmanesh, GroveMont resident actor Michael Jacobs, J. Anthony Lambert, and Rousseau.

Bouncers will play 8 p.m. performances on Mar 5, 6, 7, 12, 13 & 14.

Ticket prices are $10 general admission; $10 for students, seniors and military. Advance tickets may be purchased through the MCTA Box-Office, 655-3200. For reservations call the GroveMont Theater, 649-6852 or 655-PLAY.

All a Mistake

All a Mistake continues at California's First Theatre, presented by The Troupers of the Gold Coast in their 499th production. It will play at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday evenings through March.

All a Mistake is a comedy based on mistaken identities. With four ladies named Nellie in the show, confusion reigns in this light-hearted romp.

Following the play the Troupers will present their traditional olio (or aftershow).

Reservations can be made by calling 375-4916 or the Monterey County Theater Alliance Box Office. Tickets can also be purchased at the theater after 1 p.m. Cost is adults $7, seniors and teens, $5.50, and sub-teens, $4.50.

Music is Magic

Tres Arts Theater Productions will continue its all-star musical revue, Music is Magic, at the Wharf Theatre on Monterey's Fisherman's Wharf.

An evening of famous Broadway song-and-dance routines will be performed as well as jazz, standards and hits from the '50's and '60's. Audience participation in the '50's segment is encouraged.

In addition "Fast Eddie" Erickson will be performing on banjo and guitar (magician Robert Basgall will perform instead of Erickson on certain dates).

The show will be performed at 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, and at 8 p.m. Sundays. Tickets are $10 general admission and $5 for children under 12. Refreshments will be sold in the downstaors lobby during intermission.

For reservations, call 649-3479.

Beyond Therapy

Pamela Murphy and Jerry Walker return to the GroveMont Theater Arts Center for their third season in Christopher Durang's hilarious comedy, Beyond Therapy, continuing Thursdays through Sundays at the center.

The production continues with performances at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 7 p.m. Sundays through March 14.

The production is directed by Sid Cato and the cast includes Jim Webber, Jeannie Ferrara, Craig Schow and Kent Carlson.

Tickets are $12, seniors $10 and can be obtained by calling the Monterey County Theater Alliance Box Office at 655-3200.

CURTAIN TIME—Mary-Ann Lucido (rear), Lyn Whiting and Kevin Hanstick do scene from Tales of the Lost Formicans ... which Monterey Peninsula College Drama Department presents March 6-22 at Carmel's Cherry Hall.

How do you communicate?

IT SEEMS these days that reading and comprehension are MAJOR problems for most people^.^.^. as in hearing vs. listening. And sometimes we need a skate key to wind up the old brain.

I was walking down 7th Avenue in Carmel a few Sundays ago and saw all these white signs stating: "TOW AWAY ZONE" do not park here from Feb. 24-30 (construction going on). I chuckled and sat on the curb and watched pedestrians (a great pastime of mine) to see if they would respond to the dates on the signs. Nada! Amazing! However, by Monday morning someone managed to blacken the 30 with a magic marker to a twisted 29.

And so folks, how well do you communicate? All means of communication is ruled by the planet MERCURY, and it rules Gemini and Virgo. If you want to give a party, don't bother with invitations, hire a Gemini to call people. They love the telephone, old cars (Mercury also rules transportation), fax machines, running for mayor. They are information people and write most of our novels (Robert Ludlum). They appear on radio, television, tell stories, jokes, do thought therapy and, on the negative side, like to gossip.

My niece, Lorian (Gregory's daughter, Dad's third son), just completed her first novel for Simon and Schuster, entitled Walking Into The River, due out next fall. She has Gemini Rising and I'm very proud of her.

Gemini is interested in many ideas but also has the ability to probe below the surface and to hone in on something. Communication is important to them, written or spoken. They can write for newspapers, magazines, even scientific journals.

Discerning a person's mentality is always possible with careful study of a person's natal chart. Look to where Gemini is on the cusp, what sign Mercury is in and what planets are in your third house, in order to understand how a person communicates.

To complicate things, a planet in the third house, by its sign opposite its ninth house planets, can be a real struggle in communication, and can show learning disabilities as well as genius in a child's chart. Indeed, Mercury does have a direct bearing on one's mentality. It has a very profound effect on your capacity to think, to analyze and to function with rational thought.

Communicating better

Lately, I've been asked by a lot of couples married a mucho long time, "How can we communicate better?" Well, if your Mercury aspects Saturn, it can give a deep, penetrating mind, that is if it's not handicapped (square or opposition). It can give an analytical ability, study, a sense of responsibility, the capacity to endure, and can be cold and calculating (especially if Saturn is in the third house, which means often what they think and say is cast in concrete).

Handicapped Mercury-Saturn aspects can be negative, have a strong desire for perfection and precision; you can hire them to worry for you, they think too traditionally and fear change. They are also very fixed in their belief systems.

Dustin Hoffman has an Aries third House with Saturn in Aries — can he go from films to Rainman to Hook and gangster films like Billy Bathgate or what? His Mercury is in Virgo (a perfectionist actor), and in his eighth house of transformation; talk about self-help therapy and he gets paid for it to boot! He executes all he communicates, flawlessly as proven by his films. A fine actor, indeed.

Clint's Capricorn

Clint Eastwood has Capricorn on his third house cusp and his Moon (rules emotions and women), opposite in the ninth — the ladies love his fuzzy pussycat Moon in Leo, while his Saturn in Capricorn detests insincere flattery, keeps many women at a distance and makes him often unapproachable. He portrays all our anger and pain, pouring it across the screen in such films as Dirty Harry. He's a man who knows how to verbalize conflict and is well acquainted with pain (Saturn). In his films, he not only gets us to release our hostilities, I find his films therapeutic.

He validates our feelings because he has Scorpio rising. His method-acting for years diffuses anger and upset before it escalates, and his role has compassion for those who are upset — victims, in every day life. He's skilled for being effective when faced with intense anger, yet has a deep appreciation for the healing and clarity that comes from allowing "negative" emotions to splatter into an audience, i.e. his Saturn in Capricorn opposes his Venus in the ninth (very little romance in his films) and gives cold clarity through films (Neptune in his 10th house of career).

ASTROLOGY can show our major black holes as well as the light in communication and can help us to overcome being defensive, assigning blame and invalidating our feelings, all through an analysis of your birth chart. Effective ways to deal with rejection and criticism can be found, in order to help design your relationships to include a structure for handling upsets that are useful and positive in getting along with others.

AWARENESS helps to be effective with conflict aspects and can help you feel good about yourself, having your relationships work and, best of all, discovering your passion and vision for life. Your chart is a wonderful tool that will enable you to have a road map to harmony and intimacy with others.

Conflict situations

Isn't it time we all had a fresh understanding of what works and what doesn't? As well as experiencing a renewed ability to effectively address the conflict situations you encounter in your every day living, we can live in a world in which what everyone says, counts?

9 K.M. (female) Carmel. Born July 10, 1942. I'm planning an adventure-hiking trip the last week of June to July to Canada and Idaho. Is that a good time?

C.H.: I'd rather see you take the last week in July and into August and September, as you will have a better time, meet someone, perhaps relocate and have more fun! Mars will be in Gemini July 27 to Sept. 11, and you have five planets in Gemini — Moon, Mercury, Venus, Saturn and Uranus. Don't forget to journal-write every day about your trip experiences. This trip will also help you "chill out" your Mars in Leo, which can give Saturn a positive chance and help you work out your anger this year by flushing it out with lots of "fresh air."

9. T.9.V. (male) Salinas. Born April 2, 1957. Will I find happiness with a female born on August 31, 1944?

C.H.: Your Venus in Aries trines her Pluto in Leo, in exactly 9-degrees. You compliment the depth in her; she's at the bottom of a well (PLUTO) and you are her light, i.e. the threshold of consciousness. You can help her transform her lower nature, to climb out of a well to accept herself and go on from there. This can be a gentle transformation that can bring about lots of growth in both of you. She can teach you the power of love, however, her Saturn in Cancer squares your Venus and the black hole is she can kill your Aries Venus free spirit, so the very personna she is attracted to, she can also kill. This can be a karmic interplay of experiences, however, that can cause growth of both.

You would eventually see the overbearing attitudes of your father in her, projected from past lives onto the screen of your present life. Unconsciously you relive the love feelings you gave to your own father, which were received by coldness. She takes on the father role (past life stuff), in order to help you mature in this life. She will teach you to take more responsibility for wife and family. If the focus is on a bond of long-term relationship, as in marriage, it can turn into the legendary Gordian Knot, bringing frustration, a blockage of feelings and more karma to complete in the next life.

My question to you is, "What kind of relationship do you want with her?" Friend or lover? I suggest it be friendship.

Call with your questions and consultation appointments at 624-2881.

Baseball card show at youth center first of its kind in Carmel

SUPERSTARS SUCH as Will Clark, Joe Montana and Magic Johnson will appear with hundreds, no, make that thousands, of other sporting heroes at the Carmel Youth Center this Sunday.

Of course they won't be there in person, but their images will be bought, sold and traded in Carmel's first-ever baseball card show, scheduled for the youth center from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, March 8. Admission to the event, held at the center located at Fourth and Torres in Carmel (next to the Carmel police station), is $2 and proceeds will benefit the youth center.

According to organizers, 23 card dealers from around California have already signed up to participate, and there will even be a unique twist to this event.

"We're putting aside a small area for kids 18 and under to have their own tables to buy, sell and trade cards," says Dan Miller, one of the organizers of the event along with card dealer/collector Gary Piffero and Pat Lenz, director of the youth center. "It's unique to baseball shows of any kind."

In addition to the dealers, who will have on hand a vast array of not only baseball cards, but football, basketball, hockey, and yes, even golf and bowling cards, there will be sports memorabilia, and prize giveaways every hour on the hour, including cards, sweatshirts and autographed baseballs. "It'll be a mall of card dealers," quips Miller.

He adds that because this is the first event of its kind not only for the youth center, but for the city of Carmel, organizers hope to make the inaugural event special. "We want to go that extra mile," he says.

Youths will be able to not only play the arcade video games already in the youth center, but also participate in games in which they can win cards, even a "hoop shoot" game. All participants will also have access to the center's snack bar, which will offer up hot dogs, hamburgers, French fries, sodas, snacks and candy bars at a nominal fee.

TRAVIS KOUNS displays some of the cards that will be bought, sold and traded at Sunday's show at the Carmel Youth Center.

"The main thing that shouldn't get lost is the reason for this show," says Miller, a lifelong peninsula resident. "It's to get people acquainted with the youth center. There are a lot of people — even Carmel residents — who don't know about the youth center and what it has to offer. We hope people will become acquainted with it, then hopefully become supportive of it."

The lion's share of the youth center's operating budget comes from these types of fund-raising events, with the AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Am the biggest contributor to the cause. But as Miller and Lenz agree, the primary reason for this show is not so much to make money, but to offer a fun event that the whole family can enjoy.

"I was surprised how many kids were involved in it (the hobby), especially kids involved in it with their fathers," says Lenz, who is trying different things to attract teens to the center, which has been under-utilized in the past.

With baseball spring training beginning this should be quite an attraction for collectors, sports fans, and dealers alike.

Participants are asked to park in Vista Lobos parking lot a half-block from the center. For information call 624-3285.

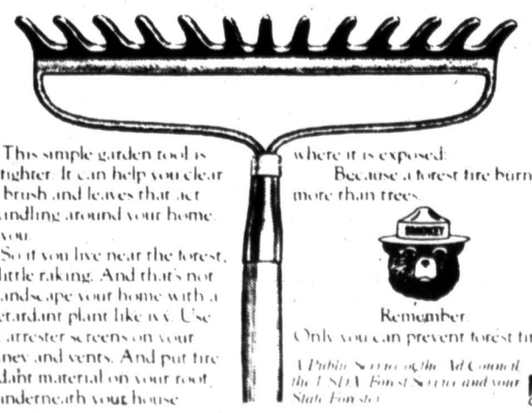
HOW THIS RAKE CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE.



This simple garden tool is a firefighter. It can help you clear away brush and leaves that act like kindling around your home. And you.

So if you live near the forest, do a little raking. And that's not all. Landscape your home with a fire retardant plant like ice. Use spark arrester screens on your chimney and vents. And put fire retardant material on your roof, and underneath your house where it is exposed.

Because a forest fire burns more than trees.

Remember.
Only you can prevent forest fires.

Spiritual discussions offered

On the first Sunday of every month there will be an offering by St. Philip's Lutheran Church of music by Pat Mahoney's group "Homefire" along with discussion and spiritual exploration especially for persons who are not currently attending church. It will be held in the church sanctuary at 8065 Carmel Valley Rd. in Carmel Valley at 7 p.m. For more information call 624-6765.

Winter hours announced for Farmer's Market

Old Monterey's Farmer's market will now be open on Tuesday night from 4:30-7 p.m. It will continue to be held on Alvarado St., Monterey, primarily between Franklin Street and Del Monterey Avenue.

Type O Donors needed now

The Community Hospital Blood Center no longer can draw blood at the Defense Language Institute, a major source in earlier years, and in addition, because of a last-minute cancellation of a Bloodmobile, the blood supplies are now seriously low, especially for type O blood. The Blood Center hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday. Also on Thursday from 10:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. For more information call 625-4814.

The creative edge group meets

A fine arts support group sponsored by The Creative Edge: The Way of the Arts offers sharing images, poetry, song, and various other fine arts expressions. The group is free and meets from 9 a.m. to noon at 8 Stratford Place, Monterey. For more information call 373-7809.

Dance jams held weekly

Everyone is invited to join in the fun at the nightly dance jams in a smoke and alcohol-free atmosphere at Franklin and Pacific Streets in Monterey. The dances are from at 8-11 p.m., and there is a door fee. For more information call 649-8702.

Bible class offered

Anyone interested is invited to attend a bible class for people using English is their second language. The classes are offered every Tuesday from 10-11:30 a.m. For more information call 646-5485.

Ballroom dance classes offered

The Hidden Valley Dance Center is offering ballroom dance classes every Sunday from 5-6 p.m. and 6-7 p.m. at the center on Carmel Valley Road just before the village. A light dinner follows the classes. The cost per couple is $30 and reservations are required. For more information call 659-3115.

SNEAK PREVIEW

This traditional California ranch home has some wonderful features making it a special home at an excellent price! The home is situated on a mostly level lot and is designed and landscaped with the valley life-style in mind. At high noon in July, the deep front porch and the cool lawn shaded by a beautiful redwood will seem quite inviting. An early morning swim or an evening gathering of friends for a BBQ & splash party will be wonderful in the private back yard. The 36'x15' free form pool is dramatically set in full sun overlooking permanent open space and is surrounded by 900 sq. ft. of quartzite stone. An additional 1250 sq. ft. sunning deck adjoins the stone decking and offers lovely canyon views and enviable solitude. An artistic river rock fireplace is featured in the family room. Skylights brighten the very spacious dining and kitchen areas. The living room and family room have soaring ceilings with exposed beams and could easily be joined into one great room. This 1900 sq. ft. home of 3 bedrooms & 2 baths is in wonderful condition. JUST LISTED and available for a sneak preview for one week only! Call now for information and an appointment!

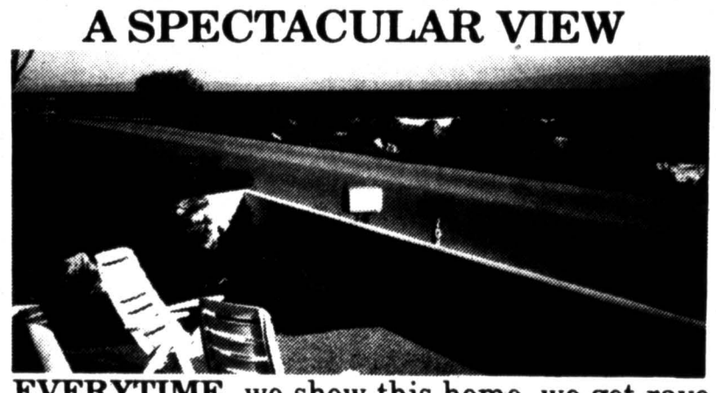
A HOME of exquisite quality, in the most desirable area of Carmel, offering unparalleled water views from Point Lobos to Point Pescadero. Standing on the equivalent of four lots, this landmark home runs from Scenic to San Antonio. It has been completely redecorated to provide you with a luxurious seaside retreat, along with exhilarating views from living room, dining room, kitchen, and master bedroom. You'll love the large patio—the perfect spot for a lazy Sunday brunch in the sun. A special offering for the discriminating buyer! $3,650,000.

LOTS OF SPACE

AND SOUTH of Carmel's Ocean Avenue, too...a home with four fireplaces, featuring big living room, country kitchen with family room, private rear garden, luxurious master suite, upstairs with two bedrooms, and plenty of bonus space under the eaves. This home is only three years old, but it looks as though it were just built yesterday, such is the care it has received. $1,050,000.

A SPECTACULAR VIEW



EVERYTIME we show this home, we get rave reviews! And no wonder, for it's situated on Pacific Grove's Ocean View Boulevard, with ice plant, sea lions and pelicans in the foreground, and a view of the blue waters of Monterey Bay all the way to Santa Cruz (on a clear day) in the background. The house itself has been beautifully renovated, and would be well worth seeing even if it didn't have the splendid view. $795,000. Call for a preview.

OLDE CARMEL

YOU HAVE IN MIND, perhaps, charm, warmth, location and stunning water views. If so, look no further than this very special home in Carmel-by-the-sea. It's one of the very oldest homes in the village, and it stands on a parcel more than half an acre in size. It's practically on the beach, and only a short walk to the village. Glorious views of Pebble Beach golf course and Stillwater Cove. $1,350,000.
